

Negotiate to End World Disputes, Khrushchev Urges

Indian Parliament Gives Soviet Chief Great Ovation

BY WATSON SIMS

New Delhi — Nikita S. Khrushchev, welcomed to India by perhaps 250,000 persons, told parliament today all international disputes should be settled on the principle of peaceful coexistence.

"The way out of all disputes should be sought through negotiations and not through pressure and dictation," the Soviet premier said in the first major speech of his 4-nation "peace and friendship" tour of Asia.

Hints Settlement

Khrushchev attracted crowds small by comparison with the tumultuous throngs who greeted President Eisenhower here on the American leader's good will tour two months ago.

His call for peaceful settlement of world issues reiterated a position he had outlined at intervals since returning from his visit to the United States last September.

Addressing a joint session of parliament he used "panch shila," a common Indian term for the coexistence treaty between India and red China, interchangeably for coexistence.

He seemed to be making a strong plea for a negotiated settlement in the bitter dispute between India and red China over 52,000 square miles of their border territory.

Vice President Sarvapalli Radhakrishnan introduced Khrushchev as "a courageous fighter for peace."

He praised Khrushchev's recent statements on disarmament and declared: "He recognizes that the economic well-being of all nations is an essential condition for world peace."

On his arrival this morning Khrushchev seemed either unaware or undaunted by the difference in the welcome given to him and to President Eisenhower. He beamed and waved his white panama hat

Ike Offers New 4-Point Plan For Limiting Nuclear Tests

Would Exempt Smaller Underground Explosions From Proposed Restrictions

Washington — President Eisenhower announced today a new 4-point U. S. plan for international restrictions on nuclear tests. Aimed to break the deadlock with Russia, it would exempt low power underground test explosions from the proposed ban.

Eisenhower told a news conference the plan was being introduced immediately at Geneva where the United States, Russia and Britain have been negotiating over a test prohibition for more than 15 months.

Eisenhower said the new proposal "would end forthwith, under assured controls" the following types of explosion:

1. All nuclear weapons tests in the atmosphere.
2. All nuclear weapons tests in the ocean.
3. All such tests "in those regions in space where effective controls can now be agreed to."
4. All tests "beneath the surface of the earth which can be monitored."

Low-powered underground tests would thus be exempted as not subject to effective monitoring.

Hopes For Support

"These are steps which offer an opportunity to consolidate the important progress made in the negotiations thus far," the president said. "It is our hope that the Soviet union will join with us in this constructive beginning."

In effect this means that the United States is abandoning at least temporarily the quest for a total ban on all nuclear weapons tests because government officials believe there is no way to police the smaller underground explosions—reported to be those below 1,000 feet.

Fireman Falls Asleep And Electricity Fails

Columbia, Mo. — The fireman at the Columbia municipal water and light plant went to sleep on the job this morning, the steam went down and all over town the lights and power went off.

With the temperature outdoors standing at 15 degrees, hundreds of Columbia stores and homes also lost their heating facilities which are controlled by electric power.

Other workmen got the plant going again after a delay of less than two hours.

January Jobs Set Record

High Mark Despite Seasonal Decline Of 1,900,000

Washington — Employment dropped seasonally by 1,900,000 last month but the number of Americans with jobs — 64,020,000 — was a record high for January, the labor department announced today.

Employment was roughly a million higher than a year ago despite the usual post-holiday shrinkage in retail payrolls and the winter curtailment of farming, building and other outdoor work.

Unemployment climbed by 572,000 to a total of 4,149,000 in January, about the usual increase for the season. Joblessness was 5.2 per cent of the civilian labor force, the same as in December. This compared with 6 per cent a year ago.

A January rise in employment in the automobile, machinery and other steel-using industries reflected continued recovery from the steel strike.

But this did not offset the seasonal dip in the soft goods industries and the contraction of outdoor work.

The work week in manufacturing was shortened by one-tenth hour and now stands at 40.4 hours a week.

For the first time, average earnings in the durable goods industries rose above $100 a week. The average was $100.94, but earnings in the nondurable goods were about $20 lower so that the average for all industry was $92.52, a rise of 58 cents from December.

Kassem Shifts Away From Communists

Cairo — Iraq's Premier Abdel Karim Kassem took another big step away from Moscow last night.

Baghdad radio announced the premier had refused to license the Moscow-backed Iraqi communist party of Abdulla Bustani as an official political party. Instead, Kassem granted a license to a splinter communist party headed by Daoud Sayegh, which international communism has denounced as a "disrupting gang."

It May be Russian

Pentagon Studies Mystery Satellite

BY C. YATES MC DANIEL

Washington — A dark satellite that the Pentagon said may be of Russian origin tumbled through space today in an orbit of mystery.

Its path over the poles was one that would be desirable for any type of "seeing eye" space spy.

Moscow was saying nothing about it.

Here's all that's known about the mystery object, according to the defense department:

It appears to be in a near polar orbit. It is dark and is probably less than 19 feet long. It is silent, as far as U. S. monitors are concerned.

American space scientists have not ruled out the possibility that the satellite could be sending messages if triggered by a remote receiving station in Russia. However, these scientists have learned from experience that it is difficult to receive signals from a space vehicle tumbling in orbit, as this one appears to be doing.

No Word in England At Jodrell Bank in England, scientists at the British radio telescope said they knew of no satellite sent aloft by the Russians recently and that they have no information on any new satellite around the poles.

Navy tracking stations first spotted the object about three weeks ago, but the defense department said nothing about it.

There was no official comment until after word was publicized yesterday that the Pentagon was buzzing with "what is it?" speculation.

American scientists quickly eliminated the possibility that the space traveler was one of the known American or Russian satellites which had been launched in a generally east-west orbit.

They did not rule out the possibility that it could be a part of Russia's Lunik III that took a picture of the far side of the moon last October.

Nuclear Sub At North Pole

Breaks Through Ice And Plants Flag Of Hawaii There

BY JOE F. KANE

Washington — The U. S. atomic submarine Sargo has smashed through the ice at the North pole and planted the flag of Hawaii — her home state — at the top of the world.

The navy said yesterday the sub, with Lt. Comdr. John Nicholson H. Nicholson as skipper, broke through the North Pole ice Tuesday afternoon and then resumed her cruise of exploration in the Arctic ocean's great basin.

The Sargo had been preceded to the pole by two sister nuclear subs, the Nautilus and the Skate. The Nautilus reached the pole on Aug. 3, 1958. The Skate made its first trip on Aug. 11, 1958, then repeated her cruise last March.

The Sargo's journey during the Arctic winter again emphasized the power of American nuclear submarines to prowling the international waters above Russia in any season.

The navy said the Sargo is collecting oceanographic data, including data on the ocean bottom and the Arctic ice.

Effects of Snow Storm in South Felt by Fox Cities

Halt Buses at Waupaca Until Way Clear to Travel, Funeral Postponed

Fox Cities area residents today felt the results of a snow storm which blew towering drifts and heavy snow into the southern third of the state Wednesday.

A Big Falls funeral was postponed because of bad weather in Milwaukee and buses were held overnight at Waupaca until highway conditions allowed travel below the Fox Cities. Meanwhile, the snow covered south struggled to free itself from drifts and clogged roads and streets in the wake of a wind-whipped snow storm that dumped more than 17 inches of snow in a 24-hour period.

It was described by the weather bureau as the second heaviest in the Milwaukee area for any 24-hour period in any February. The record, 20.3 inches was set in 1924. It was the heaviest fall since Jan. 29-30, 1947, when 18 inches fell in Milwaukee.

The storm blew itself out during the night after claiming at least eight lives. But the area, including the most populous communities in the state, faced a gigantic snow removal task and was still far from normal today.

Traffic Slow In Milwaukee, the snowfall totaled 17.8 inches.

Traffic was moving, though slowly, this morning on principal highways. In many cases it was restricted to a single lane. Most side roads were still blocked. Many schools remained closed.

At the height of the storm Wednesday, traffic was at a virtual standstill in Milwaukee, Waukesha, Racine, Ken-

Hiawatha Off Tracks But No Injuries Result

Waukesha — The Waukesha county sheriff's office said today that the Milwaukee Road's crack Hiawatha passenger train has been derailed in the village of Pewaukee.

The sheriff's office said the entire train was off the track.

A report to the sheriff's office said that the diesel locomotive and 13 cars left the rails, but did not overturn.

There is considerable debris in the area but apparently no one was injured, the department said.

The train was en route from Chicago to Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn.

Still Suspects Kidnaping

Sheriff Thinks Missing Colorado Brewer Being Held for Ransom

Golden, Colo. — Sheriff Art Wermuth said today he is convinced millionaire Adolph Coors III is alive and a hostage of kidnapers.

"It's just a feeling," he said.

"I think he's alive but I don't have any proof. It's just my particular idea."

Coors, 44, is chairman of the board of the Adolph Coors company here. He vanished Tuesday morning while en route to work from his home in the Rocky mountain foothills west of Denver. His carryall truck, its motor running, was found abandoned on a small rural bridge.

Blood was found on the seat vehicle, in the dirt beside it and on a railing of the bridge.

The FBI laboratory in Washington identified the blood on the bridge railing as human, but did not immediately say whether it matched the type of the missing man.

No Word on Contacts Scott W. Werner, agent in charge of the FBI office in Denver, said only: "We still are investigating."

Werner refused to answer a question whether law enforcement agencies or members of the Coors family have received any contacts regarding the missing industrialist.

Wermuth, a World War II green army hero who was known as the "one man army of Battann," answered the same question this way:

"I personally have not seen any ransom note. I can't speak for 70 or so people in the field, or for Scott Wermuth."

Wermuth was expected today to confer with Adolph Coors, Jr., father of the missing man. The senior Coors, 76, and his wife flew here Tuesday from Honolulu, where they were vacationing.

The parents evaded newsmen upon landing at Stapleton airport in Denver.

In Honolulu, however, the seniors Coors told reporters:

"Logis tells me he has been kidnaped. It is just a matter now of waiting for an offer. I am dealing with crooks who are in business. They have something I want to buy—my son. The price is secondary."

Target of Plot The father himself once was the intended victim of a kidnaping. Two men later sentenced to prison for auto theft admitted they had intended to abduct Coors and take him to a mountain hideaway.

Sheriff's deputies were making a check of individual cabins in the mountainous region west of the Coors home today. Wermuth explained this is a routine measure.

The sheriff said his officers are seeking "10 or 12 people, but not as suspects." Possibly among these are the two occupants of a late-model green car bearing out-of-state license which was seen parked on a dirt road within view of the Coors home Monday.

The two men in the car appeared to be making a close study of the home, Wermuth was told.

Adolph, a 6-foot-3 outdoorsman, is chairman of the overall organization at the Coors firm, which produces beer and manufacturers ceramic products that include missile nose cones.

Reforms Approved By French Cabinet

De Gaulle Cracks Down on Political-Minded Army in Algeria, Takes Away Power

Paris — President Charles de Gaulle has cracked down on his political-minded army in Algeria and ordered much power returned to civil authorities.

The French leader and his cabinet Wednesday night approved sweeping reforms aimed at confining the military to its primary task in the big North African territory—suppression of the 5-year-old nationalist rebellion.

The cabinet also took away from the French settlers in Algeria their own military arm. It had been one of the chief props of the abortive French uprising in Algiers last month.

Abolish Branch

In a series of decrees approved during a 2½-hour session, the cabinet:

Abolished the army's psychological warfare branch, some of whose officers were sympathetic to the rebellious French settlers.

Dissolved Algeria's territorial home guard units.

Relieved three top generals of their Algerian posts and ordered sanctions against an undisclosed number of other army officers.

Reorganized the Algerian police and transferred control of police services from military to civilian authority.

Took steps to restore to regional civilian governors (prefects) much of the political power taken over by the army during the Algerian settlers' uprising in 1958 which brought De Gaulle back to office.

The decrees were a major step in De Gaulle's determined campaign to prevent further uprisings and to push ahead with his policy of letting Algeria decide its political future in a free, countrywide vote. The army, chief target of the decrees, had fraternized openly with the insurgents in Algiers and took no action against them until De Gaulle cracked the whip and sent in replacements from other sectors.

Military Courts

The government also announced plans to streamline military courts to speed up trials of nationalist terrorists and said it would conduct new local elections throughout Algeria before summer.

Although the guard units are to be broken up, individual members will be called up as needed for brief periods of service in the army or with the police. The territorialists were organized as a sort of army auxiliary for the fight against the nationalists.

In the reorganization of police services, Algerian police now will serve directly under the top government official in the territory—De Gaulle's delegate-general—and not under a military chief.

The cabinet also launched a purge of police sympathizers with the colonial French. Information Minister Louis Terrenoire announced chiefs of police departments in Algeria are being replaced by men from Paris.

Sen. Morse May Enter State Primary

Observers Believe He Seeks to Spoil Clean Kennedy Win

Washington — Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) said today he is seriously considering entering the April 5 Wisconsin Democratic presidential primary.

Morse, who already is competing in the Oregon and District of Columbia primaries, said he will have an announcement on his intentions later in the week.

It was indicated this would cover also his possible entry into Maryland's May 17 primary, where Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) thus far is the only candidate filed.

Kennedy meanwhile wound up a 2-day swing through Morse's home state of Oregon and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), also campaigning for the nomination, is touring California.

If Morse should go into the Wisconsin battle, most politicians here think one of his objectives would be to try to spoil Kennedy's chance of winning any clear-cut victory.

Kennedy has said that to get the nomination he feels he will have to get sufficient support in the primaries to have the prize in sight by the time the July 11 national convention opens in Los Angeles.

Kennedy has made a victory over Humphrey in Wisconsin one of the key efforts in putting together the kind of delegate backing he says he will need.

Youth Admits Shooting at White Minister

Chicago Police Seize 6 Negroes in Holdup Try

Chicago — A 15-year-old Negro boy admitted today, police said, he shot and seriously wounded a white minister and brotherhood leader in an attempted hold-up by a teenage Negro gang Monday night.

The youth, Lonnie Bennett, was one of six Negro boys seized by police in connection with the shooting of the Rev. Leo K. Bishop, 48, vice president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Field Reed

Police said they are seeking another Negro youth and two Negro girls who were members of the gang which terrorized three south side districts Monday night.

Lt. James Keeley, who with detectives rounded up the youths, said a .22 caliber rifle and a .32 caliber pistol were found behind a plywood partition in the entryway of a building near the homes of one of the youths arrested.

Police said Bennett, in a statement, admitted he fired shots from a .22 caliber rifle when the Rev. Mr. Bishop resisted a robbery attempt. Police, however, said the minister was shot with a .32 caliber revolver, the type of gun they said had been carried by another member of the gang, Luther Gordon, 18. Police said Gordon admitted firing his gun, but he shot it in the air.

Keeley said the gang rode in two cars, one driven by Stanley Reed, 19, and the second by Nathaniel Field, 18. He said Reed and Field implicated the others in robbing a doctor and his wife of $18 and in the holdup of a truck driver of $4.85 on Monday night before the shooting of Rev. Mr. Bishop.

Police said the gang took the minister in and treated him a week ago after he was found lying hurt beside the road, apparently a victim of an auto.

His owner couldn't be found, and Brokenhearted—as Graves named him—refused to eat.

But Wednesday Amy Graves, 3, the vet's daughter, asked if she could try to feed him a bit of chicken.

Brokenhearted looked at Amy and looked at the chicken. His whiskers wiggled and his mouth watered. Then, gulped! Old Brokenhearted was eating again.

Blame Food Poison In Woman's Death

Milwaukee — Mrs. Gertrude Wilrick, 59, Milwaukee, was found dead, apparently of food poisoning, when police officers broke into her apartment Wednesday.

Dr. Finch Demonstrates in Court How He Struck Wife With Gun Butt

Los Angeles — A pistol in his hand, Dr. R. Bernard Finch stood over the man who is prosecuting him on a murder charge.

"I won't hit you," Dr. Finch told Deputy Dist. Atty. Fred N. Whichello. "I promise."

Whichello sat on the floor before the jury box, demonstrating the position the doctor said his wife was in when he hit her with a gun butt, fracturing her skull.

Shot Through Back

This blow, he said, was struck shortly before Barbara Jean Finch died—shot through the back.

The doctor maintains she was shot accidentally.

"I wasn't mad at Barbara," Finch testified Wednesday. "I was scared to death. I wasn't mad at her."

The doctor said his wife drew a gun from her car after he and Carol Tregoff confronted her in the garage of the Finch home late last July to discuss a divorce.

Finch, 42, and Miss Tregoff, his 23-year-old mistress, are charged with murder.

Whichello sat on the courtroom floor to help the doctor illustrate his version of the incident in the Finch garage. The doctor said:

"When I jerked it (the gun) away from her, Mr. Whichello, I grabbed her head—and jerked it forward—and went, bang!"

Here Finch swung the pistol butt close to the prosecutor's temple. Whichello rose and resumed his cross-examination:

Willem Van Rie, 31, a Dutch radio operator of Utrecht, The Netherlands, talks with his smiling wife Nella, 31, as they pose for photographers outside the courtroom at Suffolk superior court in Boston. The murder trial of Van Rie opened Wednesday. He is charged with the shipboard slaying of Lynn Kauffman, 23, a divorcee from Chicago.

Swept Over 2 Miles Through Tube, Boy Rescued in Lake

Erie, Pa. — A swift current of water swept 9-year-old Virgil Smartwood on a storybook ride through a tube beneath this city Wednesday before dumping him in Presque Isle bay, where he was rescued.

Virgil's watery trip began when he fell into Mill creek on Erie's south side and ended in the bay 2½ miles away.

"I walked in fell down, couldn't get up—I think I went to sleep," said Virgil after he was plucked from the icy waters of Lake Erie.

His rescuer, John Grochulski, 50, had this to say: "I never would have slept peacefully in my life again if the kid would have gone under."

The story as told by police: Virgil and Robert Fisherowski, 11, were playing along the creek near their homes late in the afternoon when Virgil fell into the stream, which ranges in depths from one to five feet. He was washed into the underground tube.

The playmate did not see Virgil fall in, but later notified Virgil's mother of his disappearance.

About 30 minutes later, Grochulski, a city employee, spotted Virgil clinging to a branch near the shore of the bay. Seconds later Virgil's grip gave way and he began to sink.

Grochulski dove into the bay and held Virgil's head above water until a small boat came to their aid.

Virgil was admitted to Hamot hospital semi-conscious and in a state of shock, but he was reported in fair condition today.

The coast guard said that a half hour in the 34-degree temperature of the water would normally prove fatal. Virgil was in for about 40 minutes.

Tiny Girl Helps Dog Eat Again

Detroit — Old Brokenhearted, a dog fasting for his lost master, decided to take up eating again Wednesday. Thanks to a tiny girl and some chicken.

Veterinarian J. B. Graves took the mongrel in and treated him a week ago after he was found lying hurt beside the road, apparently a victim of an auto.

His owner couldn't be found, and Brokenhearted—as Graves named him—refused to eat.

But Wednesday Amy Graves, 3, the vet's daughter, asked if she could try to feed him a bit of chicken.

Pope Offers Mass for Cardinal Stepinac

Vatican City — Pope John XXIII offered his daily mass today for Alojzije Cardinal Stepinac, archbishop of Zagreb, who died Wednesday at his native village of Krasic, in Yugoslavia.

Pope John said the mass in his private chapel. Only a few members of his Vatican household attended.

Family Joined After 19-Year Separation

Washington — Mrs. John Danyluk had not seen her husband for 32 years. She had not seen her two sons for 19 years. Today the Danyluks are all together again.

For them, Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev kept a promise. And so did Roswell Garst, the plain spoken Iowa corn-farmer who entertained Khrushchev during his American visit last fall.

This is the story of those long, weary years of separation:

Caught in War

John Danyluk and his wife, natives of part of Austria-Hungary that is now in the Soviet Ukraine, were married in New York City in 1916. He was 26, she was 17. Two sons were born to them, Paul and Robert.

In 1928 Mrs. Danyluk longed to visit her parents, who had moved to Tarnopol, Poland. She made the journey and took her sons with her.

The visit stretched on from year to year and the boys entered school in Tarnopol. When World War II came, the boys, American citizens by birth, were sent to safety with their father in America.

But Mrs. Danyluk could not follow. As a Soviet citizen, she was trapped.

Asked Garst

When Khrushchev came here the sons saw their chance. They wrote to Garst and asked him to intercede for their mother with the Russian leader. Garst promised to deliver a letter to Khrushchev written in Ukrainian.

At last Mrs. Danyluk was allowed to leave. She arrived by plane in New York Wednesday. Paul, now 38, met her and drove her to his home in suburban Landover, Md. Robert and her husband were waiting there for her.

"It was a simple and normal thing we wanted all these years," said Bob Danyluk, "just to have our mother with us."

Mrs. Danyluk, speaking clearly in English in spite of her years in Poland, said "I think the meeting between Eisenhower and Khrushchev is responsible for me being here."

Cardinal's Body Lies in State in Yugoslav Church

Zagreb, Yugoslavia — The body of Alojzije Cardinal Stepinac lay in state today in the little parish church of Krasic, denied burial in his cathedral at Zagreb.

Yugoslavia's communist government refused permission for the cardinal's body to be moved to Zagreb, seat of his archdiocese, where he normally would have been buried. The authorities said he would have to be buried at the church in Krasic, his native village, where the communists kept him confined as a paroled prisoner.

The funeral will be Saturday. The red authorities said all 22 Roman Catholic bishops of Yugoslavia, members of the Zagreb cathedral chapter, all members of the cardinal's family and all persons of Krasic parish could attend the requiem and burial service, which will last more than two hours. Five bishops will officiate.

Cardinal Stepinac, 61-year-old spiritual leader of Yugoslavia's seven million Roman Catholics, died Wednesday after five years of communist imprisonment on charges of wartime collaboration with the nazis and nearly nine years of confinement to the limits of Krasic.

Beats 18-Month-Old Baby, Father Jailed

Pittsburgh — Louis E. Long, 26, was sentenced to 2-to-4 months in jail Wednesday for beating his 18-month-old son. He then remarked: "There's no justice. People come into this court charged with murder and get less than I got."

Judge Thomas M. Marshall replied, "I have no sympathy and will not condone baby beaters."

The authorities said he would have to be buried at the church in Krasic, his native village, where the communists kept him confined as a paroled prisoner.

The funeral will be Saturday. The red authorities said all 22 Roman Catholic bishops of Yugoslavia, members of the Zagreb cathedral chapter, all members of the cardinal's family and all persons of Krasic parish could attend the requiem and burial service, which will last more than two hours. Five bishops will officiate.

Cardinal Stepinac, 61-year-old spiritual leader of Yugoslavia's seven million Roman Catholics, died Wednesday after five years of communist imprisonment on charges of wartime collaboration with the nazis and nearly nine years of confinement to the limits of Krasic.

Beats 18-Month-Old Baby, Father Jailed

Pittsburgh — Louis E. Long, 26, was sentenced to 2-to-4 months in jail Wednesday for beating his 18-month-old son. He then remarked: "There's no justice. People come into this court charged with murder and get less than I got."

Judge Thomas M. Marshall replied, "I have no sympathy and will not condone baby beaters."

Family Joined After 19-Year Separation

Washington — Mrs. John Danyluk had not seen her husband for 32 years. She had not seen her two sons for 19 years. Today the Danyluks are all together again.

For them, Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev kept a promise. And so did Roswell Garst, the plain spoken Iowa corn-farmer who entertained Khrushchev during his American visit last fall.

This is the story of those long, weary years of separation:

Caught in War

John Danyluk and his wife, natives of part of Austria-Hungary that is now in the Soviet Ukraine, were married in New York City in 1916. He was 26, she was 17. Two sons were born to them, Paul and Robert.

In 1928 Mrs. Danyluk longed to visit her parents, who had moved to Tarnopol, Poland. She made the journey and took her sons with her.

The visit stretched on from year to year and the boys entered school in Tarnopol. When World War II came, the boys, American citizens by birth, were sent to safety with their father in America.

But Mrs. Danyluk could not follow. As a Soviet citizen, she was trapped.

Asked Garst

When Khrushchev came here the sons saw their chance. They wrote to Garst and asked him to intercede for their mother with the Russian leader. Garst promised to deliver a letter to Khrushchev written in Ukrainian.

At last Mrs. Danyluk was allowed to leave. She arrived by plane in New York Wednesday. Paul, now 38, met her and drove her to his home in suburban Landover, Md. Robert and her husband were waiting there for her.

"It was a simple and normal thing we wanted all these years," said Bob Danyluk, "just to have our mother with us."

Mrs. Danyluk, speaking clearly in English in spite of her years in Poland, said "I think the meeting between Eisenhower and Khrushchev is responsible for me being here."

Cardinal's Body Lies in State in Yugoslav Church

Zagreb, Yugoslavia — The body of Alojzije Cardinal Stepinac lay in state today in the little parish church of Krasic, denied burial in his cathedral at Zagreb.

The authorities said he would have to be buried at the church in Krasic, his native village, where the communists kept him confined as a paroled prisoner.

This is the story of those long, weary years of separation:

State Presses for Van Rie's Conviction

Jury Takes Harbor Tour in Trial Of Dutch Sailor Charged in Killing

Boston — The state today pressed for the conviction of a Dutch ship radio operator accused of killing a Chicago divorcee, but it admitted it does not know what weapon, if any, was used.

As the trial of Willem Van Rie, 31, neared the end of the first day Wednesday, his attorneys requested that the prosecution describe the manner of the alleged crime and the weapon.

The state replied: "The commonwealth is unable to specify at this time whether any weapon or other instrument was used in the commission of the crime."

Shipboard Romance

The state contends Van Rie beat Lynn Kauffman, 23, and dumped her body overboard to climax a shipboard romance during a slow boat trip from the Orient.

Miss Kauffman's body was found on the rocky shore of a drab Boston harbor island in mid-September, the day after the SS Utrecht sailed from Boston to New York on its 44-day voyage from Singapore.

In another specification, the state said Miss Kauffman's body was seen floating in the water before it was recovered from the island's shore.

Chartered Boat

The state did not disclose who saw the body afloat or whether that person would be called as a witness.

The state chartered a private boat today to take the 12-man jury and its two alternates on a tour of Boston harbor to point out the path of the Utrecht and the spot where the divorcee's body was found.

Van Rie showed no outward signs of nervousness as he sat in the prisoner's dock. Once Wednesday he turned to his wife of two years and winked confidently. She came here from their home in Utrecht, Holland, to stand by him. She occupied a spectator's seat 15 feet from him.

LaCrosse Crash Raises Road Toll To 71 Deaths

Milwaukee — A car that hit a tree after veering off a snowy road in Oconomowoc county, and a station wagon-truck collision near La Crosse raised the Wisconsin highway toll to 71. On this day a year ago, the state had 72 traffic fatalities.

Walter Linse, 59, of Sullivan, was injured fatally Wednesday night when his car skidded off a snow-packed road three miles south of Oconomowoc and hit a tree.

La Crosse county police said that a man tentatively identified as Albert Munson, 58, of De Soto, was killed Wednesday night when the station wagon in which he was riding crashed into a cattle truck on the outskirts of La Crosse. The highway was clear.

Four other men in the station wagon were injured and taken to the hospital. The truck driver was not hurt.

Pay Plan 'Mess'

Council Committee
Critical of Another

A rare criticism of one city council committee by another has developed over handling of the council's new pay plan for city employees.

Public safety committee-men agreed that the finance committee "had made a mess" of the new pay plan.

Safety committeemen, who have jurisdiction over about 40 per cent of the employees directly under the council, said they will seek an early joint meeting with the finance committee to "iron out" the problem.

Around Home...

Devotees of the comic strips received a shock last week when it was reported, "Miss Peach, the schoolteacher, has died and left her library to Lawrence college."

The facts were quite correct, but the identity was wrong. The donor was Miss Dora Pietsch, one-time faculty member at Wright Junior college in Chicago, who left a collection of German works to Lawrence. Miss Pietsch had no known connection with Lawrence other than a friendship with the late Dr. Louis Baker, for many years professor of French and German at Lawrence.

Appleton Students
Among Lawrence
Degree Recipients

Five Lawrence college students, including two Appleton residents, completed requirements for bachelor's degrees at the end of the first semester.

They are Donald Lorenz, 1506 1/2 S. Jefferson street; Judith Harwood, 1708 S. Douglas street; Joyce Ward Fox, Deerfield, Ill.; Dana Parker, Erie, Pa.; and Robert Bergmann, Glencoe, Mo.

Lorenz majored in biology and has taken a position with a chemical firm.

Miss Harwood, an English major, belongs to Delta Gamma social sorority, which she has served as recommendations chairman.

Mrs. Fox, a history major, is now teaching in Berkeley, Ill. Miss Parker majored in psychology and Bergmann in French.

Discussion Tuesday started when Electrical Inspector Fred Volkman asked for increases for two of his men. He said both are at least journeymen electricians and are paid less than others whose skills and workload are less.

Made Mistake

Chief of Police Hendricks told the committee he erroneously put one man through for a pay increase in December. The man, he said, is making $380 a month while others who are equally qualified are getting $350.

The chief proposed to hike the pay of the other seven men to $380. Fire Chief Neumann said he has seven or eight men in the $350 class for whom he would immediately seek $380 if the Hendricks' request is granted.

Committeemen said they would join the fire and police commission in opposing a cut-back of $15 a month for the man erroneously "promoted." They said they would solve the problem by hiking the pay of all others to meet his.

A committeeman said Hendricks' problem was of his own doing for bypassing the safety committee in December and going directly to the finance committee with his pay increase request. It was recalled that the finance committee in December had agreed to handle all requests at once.

Constantly Critical

Hendricks said the committeemen would have been as confused as he was over the new plan.

The committeeman said a plan advocated in December would have been best: Set the new pay rates, give every employee one step hike for cost of living adjustment, and then go over the entire plan for inequities that could be righted at the same time.

The new pay plan, drafted by the state bureau of personnel, was filed with the city late last year and adopted with modifications in December.

The 10-Year Traffic Record

The casual follower of traffic news probably would never suspect that the death toll on Wisconsin highways is not as high today as it has been in the past. There are more cars on the highways and the cars are being driven more miles. But, according to Commissioner James Karns of the Motor Vehicle Department, Wisconsin had 5.53 fatalities per 100 million miles of vehicle travel in 1959 which is the lowest on record. The rate for 1958 was 5.83. Eight hundred and twenty-one persons lost their lives in traffic accidents on Wisconsin highways last year which sets a record for improvement in highway safety. In each of the past 10 years except 1951, more persons were killed in traffic on Wisconsin highways than in 1959.

Commissioner Karns points out that there were 82 death-free days on Wisconsin highways last year. He suggests that Wisconsin drivers try to make it 100 death-free days in 1960. It seems odd that nearly one-fourth of the days in the year should be free of fatal accidents under conditions in which fatalities are so regular that they show up on more than three-fourths of the days. But there are many other oddities in the safety figures which are intriguing but go unexplained. They are noted and studied, however, for whatever value they may reveal.

For example, there were 29 fewer deaths last year than in the year before on the rural roads. Also, there was an increase in urban deaths of 27. At the same time urban pedestrian deaths increased by only one. It is believed that the annexation of outlying territory by some cities brought some high speed roadways within the city limits and the accidents on such roads were chargeable to the city rather than to rural areas thereafter.

As usual, the report indicates that Sunday is an unsafe day on the highways. More than 206 persons were killed in Sunday accidents while only 78 died on Tuesdays making that the safest day of the year. Friday, Saturday and Sunday combined accounted for 57 per cent of all deaths. Interesting, too, is the fact that August stands out as the most dangerous month with 89 dead last year. The safest month was March when there were only 41 traffic fatalities.

There were no cities with populations over 50,000 free of fatal accidents during 1959. Manitowoc was the only city among those of 25,000 to 50,000 population with a clear record. Nevertheless, it is not necessarily a reflection on safety work in Wisconsin cities that this is so for Milwaukee during the year had 1.5 traffic deaths for each 10,000 motor vehicles registered there. This was not only the best record in Milwaukee's population class, which is from 500,000 to 750,000, but it also was better than the record of any city of the next lowest class which was from 350,000 to 500,000.

It is difficult to find a precise reason for one city or county being accident free while another is plagued by frequent accidents. But safety workers believe there is a good reason for every figure in the statistics. More than likely the city that has a good record is a place where considerable effort has been put forward to make the city safe. This calls for good educational work and good law enforcement but it must be pretty obvious from Wisconsin's records that it is much easier to have a good safety record in a small locality where there are comparatively fewer automobiles than in the larger communities where the streets and roads are over-burdened with cars and where drivers may come from great distances.

Sen. Harry Byrd Warns About Proposed 'Aid to Education' Bill

Speech by Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D.Va.), prepared for delivery in the senate.

Under the pending "aid-to-education" bill the federal government in two years would take another $1 billion from the pockets of taxpayers in every state, clip up to 20 per cent out of it for federal administration, and return what is left as so-called federal "grants" to states and localities with Washington strings attached.

This bill would open a Pandora's box. There is no scarcity of effort to exploit public education for federal control and expenditure with maximum extravagance and minimum efficiency. Current efforts represented by amendments offered to this bill would run federal education expenditures into a multi-billion dollar program. States, localities and the public generally should beware. Money spent for federal overhead will not buy classrooms. This bill would fix grants on a basis of how much a state spends for schools; not on what it receives for the expenditure. Federal bureaus will never subsidize major education programs without exercising control.

Surely, pious words in the first two paragraphs of the pending bill say the money is for only construction and no federal control will be exercised. But 20 lines further down there begins a 4-page formula to be met by states and localities when they come begging for federal handouts.

This is routine in federal grant and loan programs. Almost without exception, they establish federal control. If control is not established otherwise, it is achieved through standards which must be met by applicants before the money is made available and while it is being used.

The Treasury Department lists 60 programs through which federal funds are paid to state and local units, under so-called cooperative arrangements. These programs are generally referred to as "federal grants-in-aid," and federal expenditures through them in fiscal year 1959 totaled $6.4 billion. If this legislation is enacted, it will establish another "federal grants-in-aid" program, and like too many others it will tempt states and localities to abandon or erode fundamental responsibilities, yielding to centralized control under the cloak of so-called grants of federal funds.

Skyrocket, Horn Warning Suggested For Some Drivers

From The Savannah, Ga., Morning News

A national magazine recalls a 1912 Nebraska law which specified that "autos running on country roads at night must send up a skyrocket every 150 yards, wait eight minutes for the road ahead to clear, then proceed with caution, blowing the horn and shooting roman candles."

This regulation was enacted, of course, in the days when horseless carriages were not so common. But there are some modern motorists whose driving habits lead one to wish that the ruling was still in effect everywhere.

In 1933 federal grants-in-aid-to-states programs of any consequence could be counted on the fingers of one hand, including the highway and land grant college programs; and federal expenditures through them totaled only about $100 million.

In 1959 there were 60 listed programs for grants-to-states and local units and expenditures totaled $6.4 billion.

Congress Certain To Finish for Democratic Meeting

From The San Francisco Chronicle

The opening of the second session of the 86th congress was accompanied by a news item which more than any other we've seen, suggested what is mainly on the leadership's mind. The report said Speaker Rayburn (who was 78 yesterday) "expected" congress to wind up by July 10, the day before the Democratic national convention opens in Los Angeles. That is a political promise the nation may count on being kept.

Assembly Ousts Daniel C. Jenne

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Feb. 4, 1860.

Dan'l C. Jenne, Esq., the gentleman who was defeated in Outagamie County by Milo Coles and awarded the certificate of election by the canvassers, did not appear at the time of taking testimony when notice of contest was served upon him by Mr. Coles.

But when the State Legislature convened, he was promptly on hand to claim an assembly seat under such dishonorable and disreputable circumstances, thus keeping the rightful representative out of his seat.

On Monday last by the unanimous vote of the Assembly, the vote being 87 ayes and 0 noes, Daniel C. Coles, Republican was ousted therefrom and Milo Coles, Democrat, the gentleman actually elected, admitted thereto.

Right and Justice has triumphed over Wrong and Iniquity!

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Feb. 7, 1935 The engagement of a full time city physician at an annual salary of $2,400 was voted by the common council.

The Outagamie county board that morning received a proposal from town supervisors asking the county to assume the task of patrolling and removing snow from all town roads in addition to county, state and federal roads.

Edna Ferber Night was observed by the Wisconsin Writers class under the direction of Mrs. John Morgan at Appleton Vocational school. Arthur Howe gave personal recollections of Miss Ferber from the time when he was a clerk in "My Store" of which Miss Ferber's mother was proprietor. Miss Harriet Brittain, secretary to Dr. Harry Lewis, dean of the Institute of Paper Chemistry, was named resident supervisor of Peabody hall, Lawrence college women's dormitory.

Officers elected by the Twin Cities Y. W. C. A. board of directors and announced that morning were Mrs. Carlton Smith, president, Mrs. L. J. McCrary, first vice president, Mrs. H. O. Griffith, second vice president, Mrs. James Kreiss, secretary, Miss Anna Gram, treasurer.

10 YEARS AGO Thursday, Feb. 9, 1950

Mrs. John Zeschush and Mrs. Victor Zeschush, Neenah, were named chairmen of the Pi Beta Phi alumnae, active and pledge party at a dessert meeting at the home of Mrs. Alden Johnson.

Under the Capitol Dome

Many Objections to Home Tax Exemption

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — The discussions among the members of the citizens tax advisory committee trying to work up a blueprint for Wisconsin tax revision appear to assume the general acceptability of a home-stead property tax exemption as one of the fruits of state tax rewriting through higher income taxes or the adoption of a sales tax.

Yet there is no assurance of such general acceptance, for fairly obvious reasons. Meanwhile there is considerable curiosity about the abrupt manner in which the home-stead exemption conception was thrown into the committee deliberations and the casualness with which it has been received.

A rebate to the taxpayer as a voter, as distinguished from the use of possible state tax receipts for sharing with local governmental corporations, is a reasonably apparent political device. The voter would be reminded, directly and forcefully, about what was being done for him. Or put another way, these planners don't trust the local government administrations to pass down to their constituents the benefits of the additional state money that is being talked about.

EQUITIES

Yet there are objections that will be cited quite aside from the politics of the situation, objections resting upon considerations of equity.

A flat exemption proposal (such as the $3,000 per owner-occupied home that is so frequently discussed now) appears to assume uniformity of assessment levels on the one hand and uniformity of local tax rates on the other and it is obvious that such situations do not obtain.

A $3,000 exemption in one district would amount to excusing 50 per cent of the tax liability on half or more of all homes; in another it would amount to a quarter, or less, on a smaller ratio.

The amount of a taxpayer's home-stead tax liability is to some degree his own doing — either through his choice of a home, or through his choice of a community and its taste in local spending. But to a significant degree, the liability is beyond his control. He may live in a community that has a limited tax base. He may live in a community that has a rich tax base, through one circumstance or another.

There also is implicit in the home-stead exemption idea the assumption that the man who owns a home, of all the taxpaying classes, is the most worthy. But is there any proof that the man who chooses a city apartment, and pays rent for its use, is a lesser citizen than his neighbor? Is it defensible that the man who owns a house for investment purposes should be taxed at a higher rate than his brother who chooses to occupy his?

BAIT

The dominant theme of the tax revision committee's work thus far, and an obviously earnest one, is the devising of a means for abating property tax increases, at the least, or actually relieving the property tax burden, at best.

Yet the goal will be missed, some sympathetic observers are sure, if there are obvious avenues for attack and there will be under a flat and automatic value exemption system.

The close observer is tempted to say that these men are being lured by political considerations, perhaps unconsciously. They want to be absolutely sure that the property taxpayer knows what they are trying to do for him.

But it seems doubtful that the property taxpayer, in the aggregate, is paying close attention. Chances are that what he wants is some assurance that the property tax system won't get out of hand altogether. The best assurance is through the precision tool of state aids and state tax sharing under calculated formulas that will hold to a minimum the inequities of the tax burden, rather than multiply them.

All political history shows that under democratic processes there is no letter perfect system of distributing the burden of public taxes.

Neenah Was Courageous In Dispute

From The Dallas Morning News

In Neenah, Wis., 200 strikers staged a pitched battle at the gates of the Neenah Foundry when nonstrikers tried to enter the plant. Wives of strikers called on Mayor Chester Bell. In no uncertain terms, they told him that massed pickets were there to prevent anybody from working. Neither they nor their husbands own the plant. Just the same, they don't want the plant to operate until a settlement is made. The mayor told them: "The right to strike does not include a right to gather in masses. They (strikers) have a right to strike but no right to prevent others from entering the plant."

The chief of a badly outnumbered police force told the strikers: "It is our job to protect nonstrikers as well as others. The law says we must." The city attorney threatened to slap an injunction on the rioters.

Somebody ought to award a national medal of honor to these small-town officials. They have handled mass violence the way it should be handled in labor, race relations and every other kind of disorder.

No union man wants an armed robber entering his house, pistol-whipping him and his wife and running off with their personal belongings. It is against the law. It is against the law to commit violence under the guise of "labor dispute."

GRIN AND BEAR IT

By Lichty

"With everyone frantic to claim exemptions, we COULD be responsible for a population explosion, chief! . . ."

Dr. Wriston's New Position

Although President Eisenhower so far has been rather vague about the scope of the new Commission on National Goals, the organization won't remain in the clouds under the leadership of Chairman Henry Merritt Wriston. Whether or not one always agrees with Dr. Wriston, there is nothing remotely inconclusive about him.

This area knew Dr. Wriston as president of Lawrence college during the tough depression years when he insisted on raising admittance standards and still helped keep the college economically above water. His early years were in the field of education and he retired as president of Brown university in 1955. Since that time he has headed the American Assembly, a quasi-governmental agency connected with Columbia university which studies foreign problems of the day and comes up with advice too seldom taken.

"A perpetually dissatisfied Republican," Dr. Wriston is a westerner by birth who grew up in New England. His is the probing mind and he has the energy to implement his ideas.

The President has stipulated that basic to national security and future growth is the fact that "we must clearly visualize the tasks ahead and set out to perform them with resolution and vigor." The apparent aimlessness of much of the agency business in Washington won't be overcome merely by setting out the aims. But at least it's a step in the right direction. And, we suspect, Dr. Wriston will continue vigorously to point out variations and mistakes when they occur.

TV Has Become Children's Principal Leisure Pastime

From The Charlotte, N. C., News

A child's life in the recent past was a thing of wonder, variety, awe and enthusiasm.

For the schoolboy of just a few years ago, the days were not long enough. Besides tolerating the hours between recess and the final bell there was ball to play and pals to race, girls to tease and scooters to ride, mudholes to wade and hikes to take, frogs to catch and dogs to pet, treeshouses to build and kites to fly, adults to annoy, books to read and parents to enjoy.

Time was limited. A kid had to keep on the go. But of all the day's adventure, evenings at home after supper were the best times: A family game, maybe, and a recount of the day's fun, then homework and some reading before bedtime.

For kids nowadays, despite the complexity of the era, the schedule is similar. The time is merely divided, more or less, between sleeping, school and television.

The contrast between then and now might be a little sharp; but not too much according to a survey made among youngsters in a local Sunday school class. As a group they devoted about a third of their waking hours to television each week, maybe an hour a day to studying, and less than that to reading.

The survey had its limitations. There were only nine children in the sample. The test conductor was simply an interested PTA official and parent. The children reported their own time spent at the various activities.

But the results were startling. By all odds, television is the principal diversion. It offers excitement in youth. But what of variety and wonder? Just look at any program schedule.

Homework Almost Extinct

Homework has become almost as extinct as reading for pleasure. And if the youngsters were being quite candid about the hours spent helping out around the house we wonder what has become of hopscotch, sandlot baseball and the family powwow.

The problem lies not with the electronic marvel that consumes so much of the day (or night), but with the lack of selectivity in scheduling the time spent watching television and pursuing other interesting leisure activities.

Television is a splendid and useful instrument when used wisely to augment family activities through entertainment and instruction. But it ought not become the center of family life, to the exclusion of other interests.

 osha, Walworth and Rock counties.

The weather, though not as severe as in Milwaukee, had its effects on the Fox Cities area.

Postpone Funeral
 Bad weather at Milwaukee forced the postponement of the funeral of Cecil A. McNinch, 54, at Big Falls. McNinch, a town of Wyoming farmer, died Monday at Iowa after a long illness.

The funeral will be at 2 p. m. Friday at St. Peter Lutheran church, Big Falls, instead of today. His sisters are unable to leave Milwaukee because of the snow clogged highways.

Buses traveling south were held overnight at Waupaca Wednesday because of weather and road conditions in the south. The buses were allowed to travel at 8:30 a. m. today.

Train Stalled
 A Soo line freight train bound for Hilbert had to break its load into two sections to negotiate a snow blocked pass at Sherwood this morning. The incline into the pass, weather conditions and a heavy load of cars often causes the train to stall, railroad officials said.

Total snow depth in the Fox Cities is six and one half inches. The blowing snow added three inches to three and one half inches already on the ground. Top wind velocity Wednesday evening was 25 miles an hour at 6 p. m.

Northern reaches of the Fox Cities area reported little or no snow. All highways are open and in good driving condition, highway commissions said.

But back in the snow belt: Factories Closed Schools, factories and stores were closed when winds that hit up to 60 miles an hour piled up huge drifts of snow. All planes were grounded.

At least eight Milwaukee persons died of heart attacks brought on by snow shoveling or by overexertion in trying to walk through heavy drifts. One was a mail carrier.

Snow plows were unable to keep up with the drifts on the main travelled roads of the southeastern part of the state and had to be pulled off the highways to give their tired drivers a rest. Hundreds of cars were reported stalled.

Milwaukee Hit
 Milwaukee was particularly hard hit. Hundreds of stores and factories closed early sending their employees home and notifying second and third shift workers not to report.

About 500 men spent the night at the A-C Spark Plug plant in Oak Creek, a suburb of Milwaukee.

The 2,500 first shift workers were marooned at the plant for several hours before plows managed to clear a road leading to the plant and a parking lot. About 2,000 of the employees were able to get out but the others did not try to make it.

Racine and Kenosha also were clobbered with 14 inches of new snow on the ground Wednesday night. Beloit and Janesville also reported similar falls.

Ike Airs New Plan to Control Nuclear Tests

 low 20,000 kilotons (the size of the Hiroshima bomb).

Eisenhower said the United States has sought throughout the Geneva negotiations for complete abolition of weapons testing subject only to agreement on "adequate methods of inspection and control."

The essence of the underground control problem is that U. S. scientists have advised the president and have informed the British and Russians at Geneva that relatively low yield explosions are difficult to distinguish from earthquakes and their shock waves may be deliberately damped by firing the shot in a large hole.

Proposals Feasible
 Eisenhower said his four areas of the proposed limited ban constitute "readily attainable steps toward a complete ban on nuclear weapons tests."

Eisenhower labeled as crazy a specific contention by Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev that communism is superior to free world capitalism.

The president was asked for comment on a statement, attributed to Khrushchev, that Russia's flag is flying on the moon and this proves that communism is better than capitalism.

Eisenhower replied he thinks it's a crazy statement. The president said he concedes that Russia has to its credit some spectacular achievements in space exploration. But the American people, Eisenhower went on, should not get hysterical about such achievements.

The president added that we should not let this sort of accomplishment by Russia dismay us.

Defense Arguments
 He deplored public argument among military experts regarding the adequacy and specific requirements of the nation's defense.

He made that statement when told that experts in the defense department and members of congress have been in intense controversy regarding the relative missile strength of the United States and Russia.

Eisenhower touched off a laugh by remarking it would be fair to classify defense department officials as experts. As for those at the Pentagon, Eisenhower said, obviously the men there come up with different ideas and exploit them.

The president then went on to say that he deplores arguments among these experts on the methods involving U. S. security, and the publicizing of such differences.

At another point Eisenhower was asked how he feels about disclosure of specific figures regarding defense weapons and whether that is a disservice to national security.

Eisenhower replied he believes such figures do not mean a lot.

There have been contentions by some Republicans in congress that data regarding the

More than a million turned out — some sources said 2½ million—to welcome the U.S. president. The crowd today was in the neighborhood of a quarter million.

Khrushchev told India's lawmakers "the principles of panch shila are living reality, owing in considerable measure to the peace-loving efforts of India."

"We can easily foresee when countries of Asia which only yesterday were oppressed colonies will be among the most advanced nations of the world," he said.

"The nations of Asia and Africa are starting to build new lives for themselves."

"Our sympathy always has been on the side of countries like Cuba, which is actively defending its national and economic independence."

"The Soviet Union is always ready to render disinterested support for those countries struggling against age-old economic backwardness."

Lashes at West
 This declaration drew loud applause.

In a swipe at the western powers, Khrushchev declared:

"Some highly developed countries attained high economic standards by oppression of countries in Asia and Latin America. It would only be fair if these western countries returned to their former colonial possessions at least part of their former plunder."

"We, without any surplus capital, are rendering aid where it is needed. We want to see the countries receiving this aid stand on their own feet in producing not only consumer but capital goods as well."

Khrushchev noted that Soviet-aided projects in India include a $250 million steel mill at Bhilai and said:

"May friendship between us be as strong as the metal produced at Bhilai." This statement brought further loud applause.

Khrushchev struck out against what he termed "various fables being spread about the Soviet Union."

He said these included allegations there is no democracy or individual freedom in Russia and "even the absurd allegation that there is slave labor in the Soviet Union."

"In the Soviet Union, every citizen possesses the real right of work, rest and social security," he said. "Our people have no fear of unemployment. Everybody is afforded ample opportunity to develop creative ability."

Reynolds Joins Kennedy Fold

Says Senator Has Best Chance of Beating GOP

Green Bay — Atty. Gen. John Reynolds today openly joined the presidential primary effort for Sen. John Kennedy and said he would campaign by doing "anything and everything the Kennedy people ask me to do."

Reynolds' prepared announcement said he had decided to join the Kennedy forces "only after serious deliberation as to what is in my judgment best for the nation and the Democratic party."

He said he would concentrate his campaigning for Kennedy in the Fox Valley and in northern and western Wisconsin.

Reynolds said there are a number of "fine candidates" available to the Democrats and he named Adlai Stevenson and Sen. Hubert Humphrey. But Reynolds flatly opposed the candidacy of Sen. Lyndon Johnson, senate majority leader from Texas.

He added it was important for Wisconsin Democrats to have a presidential candidate who will strongly help the party in state elections, particularly in wresting control of the state senate from Republicans to end the blocking of Gov. Gaylord Nelson's plans "by an irresponsible do-nothing Republican state senate."

Man Protests $16,905 Paving Assessment

Houston, Texas — Contractor S. W. Gaylord appeared before the city council Wednesday to protest a street paving assessment of $16,905.30. In September he obtained a $217,919 contract to handle the project.

The contractor said the paving would not increase the value of his property by the assessed amount. He owns 1,110 feet facing the project.

No decision was announced by the city council.

Stephen Austin, 13, Green Bay, left, receives a youth achievement award for his attempt to save the life of another boy in the Wolf river at New London in December. Green Bay Police Chief H. J. Bero makes the presentation for the Policemen's Benevolent and Protective association. The other boy, Robert Maceux, 14, Allouez, received a similar award for his rescue of a boy in the Fox river last June.

Attempted New London Rescue

Police Honor Boys for Their Water Life Saving Efforts

Post-Crescent News Service

Green Bay — A Green Bay skin diver who nearly lost his own life while attempting to rescue another boy in the Wolf river near New London in December was one of two recipients Wednesday of the first of a planned annual pair of youth achievement awards from the Policemen's Benevolent and Protective association of the Green Bay police department.

Engraved plaques "memorializing voluntary deeds of extraordinary courage and service to one's fellow man" were presented during special police station ceremonies to Robert Maceux, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Maceux, Allouez, and Stephen Austin, 13, son of Dr. and Mrs. Stephen Austin, Green Bay.

Young Austin's award was made for his attempt to save the life of a fellow skin diver, Donald Mielke, 17, during an underwater search for the body of a 3-year-old boy who drowned in the Wolf river near New London in December.

Passed Out Working in swift current 15 feet below the frozen surface of the river, Austin first gave Mielke the mouthpiece of his own breathing apparatus when Mielke experienced difficulty with his equipment. Then, when Mielke was borne away by the strong current, Austin left the divers' lifeline to retrieve Mielke.

Stephen again offered his own mouthpiece to Mielke, thus depriving himself of an air supply for too long a period until he also passed out. He recovered later in a hospital after he was rescued by an older diver, Cy Besansin, and other persons who were summoned.

Young Maceux was cited for his swimming rescue of 6-year-old Mark Stevens last June 20 when the lad and his father, Francis Steven, Green Bay, were struggling in the Fox river in Green Bay after their boat capsized.

State to Aid Five Clinics

Appleton, Neenah Guidance Centers; Not Open, Apply

Madison — The state public welfare department reported Wednesday five child guidance clinics have qualified for state aid under a 1959 law.

The clinics are in Dane, Eau Claire, Sheboygan, Fond du Lac and Ozaukee counties.

Wilbur Schmidt, director of the department, said about $553,000 was spent on public clinics in the 1958 - 59 fiscal year. Local units of government provided two-thirds of the financing, Schmidt said.

The clinics treat mental and emotional illness.

Outagamie and Winnebago county clinics have applied for aid, but neither is in operation yet.

The Winnebago clinic is scheduled to open next month. A staff has been named and quarters are ready in the WN-AM building on county trunk A south of Neenah.

The Outagamie clinic is still in the formation stage. Other counties that have submitted applications for aid are in Brown, Dodge, Douglas, Grant, LaCrosse, Manitowoc, Marathon, Racine, Rock, Walworth and Waukesha counties.

300 Lincoln Day Dinner Tickets Sold by GOP

More than 300 tickets for the Outagamie county Lincoln day dinner have been sold and more reservations are expected. Allan Mink, ticket chairman, said today.

Philip G. Kuehn, Milwaukee candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, will be the speaker at the dinner at 7 p. m. Tuesday. The dinner, and a reception beginning at 6 p. m., will be at the Con-way hotel.

Leonard Pasek, county GOP chairman, called the demand for tickets a reflection of a "surge of renewed enthusiasm" being exhibited by Republicans all over the state. Mrs. Alberta Stohlman and F. H. Jenkins are co-chairmen of the dinner.

The reception for Kuehn will be the first function held in the new addition at the Con-way hotel.

County Party Heads Meet With C of C Members

The importance of political participation at the precinct level was stressed by chairmen of county political parties and the chairman of the county board at an Appleton Chamber of Commerce discussion period Wednesday.

Speaking to a joint breakfast meeting of two chamber groups enrolled in an "Action Course in Practical Politics," were Lester Balliet, county Democratic party chairman, Leonard Pasek, county Republican chairman, and Alvin Fulcer, chairman of the county board.

Mark Catlin, former speaker of the assembly, was unable to attend.

Parties Restricted
Pasek told the group that "the good men must participate in politics or the bad ones will." He said politics on the precinct level is recovering from restrictive laws initiated under Robert LaFollette, Sr.

Balliet stressed the importance of house-to-house campaigning in precincts, and said it not only is important in finding new members, but is necessary to encourage people to vote.

Fulcer said it is unfortunate more people do not take an active interest in government on a county level.

During a discussion period Fulcer and Mayor Clarence A. Mitchell were questioned on whether they thought city and local elections should be conducted on a partisan basis.

Mitchell said he was in favor of the present nonpartisan structure. "If the mayor were elected on a partisan basis, aldermen and other city officials should also be on that basis," he said.

Fulcer said he felt county elections also should be left out of partisan politics.

The party chairmen said the best way to become active in local politics is to attend meetings and volunteer for work.

Law Murders But More Violations by Officials in Poland

Warsaw—Police figures just published show less murder, robbery and hooliganism in Poland in 1959, but more public officials in trouble with the law.

The report of the people's militia said the number of murders declined 14.7 per cent from 1958, robberies of public property were down 1 per cent and of private property 2.7 per cent. But the number of cases involving officials violating the law rose from 21,400 in 1958 to 25,500 in 1959.

The report said the official offenses involved failure to carry out duties, bribery and embezzlement. The larger number of persons caught for these offenses indicates more efficient investigations and police work, it added.

As for hooliganism, or juvenile delinquency, the report said the number of cases dropped by several thousands but "is still too high." Efforts to reduce it further are to be continued this year, especially in Warsaw, which registered the nation's only increase in hooliganism.

Collier Book Tribute to Brave Londoners' Night of Horror

BY W. G. ROGERS
AP Arts Editor

("The City That Would Not Die: The Bombing of London May 10 and 11, 1941," by Richard Collier. Dutton, $4.50.)

The May 10 raid almost didn't take place. Hitler decided on it at the last minute, late the evening of May 9, perhaps to cover up his secret plans to invade Russia.

It was a raid the hapless English could have done without.

First alert showed at 4:31 p.m.; it was almost 6 in the morning before the all-clear. In the midnight hours London suffered an unbelievable, you would think an unendurable, punishment — over 1,400 killed, 2,200 fires started, 5,500 houses demolished, perhaps 20 million pounds damage.

Churchill wept when he viewed it the morning after.

Lack of Organization

The defenses were not always well organized. Fire fighting lacked an adequate central control; some fire watchers were not at their posts on roofs; some had to get police and customs permission to enter a blazing bonded warehouse; even the gates of Buckingham Palace were locked and men had to drag their hose over them.

But in the main this is a picture of widespread, almost universal sacrifice, courage and heroism. The incendiaries showered down, then came the rain of bombs, flames built up winds that threatened to suck victims into their grasp, explosives penetrated shelters, houses dropped down into their cellars, men and women were buried alive. Rescuers lost their lives.

One odd incident — there

Wiper Blades Should Be Checked Often For Streaks, Pressure

How are you fixed for blades? Windshield wiper blades, we mean.

The state motor vehicle department warns that streaking blades are the mark of a slip-slod driver, and this type of driver is a hazard to himself and others on wintertime roadways.

Also, about every six months, you should have your wiper arms checked for adequate pressure. The wiper arm must exert one ounce of pressure for each inch of blade length, or you get a blurred wipe—even with new blades. Have your arm pressure checked.

were scores — was the complaint of some family that the body of the man it lost was brought home in a dump cart.

Collier says that dreadful night sped England on toward a classless society. He went to nearly 600 people to dig out this story, which he tells minute by minute.

There are dramatic photos, including one of German Field Marshal Sperrle who planned the raid.

Few people have ever had such a night to remember, few have stood up to it so well. This is a splendid tribute to their prowess.

Meter Maids May be Made Part of Plan

Parking Department Control of Them Suggested by Chief

Meter maids to police the city's parking meters may be made part of the package including new parking rates and time limits downtown.

Chief of Police Hendricks, heretofore an opponent of women in his department, told the council's public safety committee Tuesday he would not object to meter maids being placed under supervision of the parking meter department.

In reply to another question later, the chief said he now believes the department eventually will have to hire a policewoman to interrogate juvenile girls.

The questions were asked by Ald. Thomas K. Schneider, safety committee chairman, who said he would like to see all costs of policemen and equipment required to police parking meters charged to the police department budget as suggested by Mayor Mitchell.

Seek Legal Opinion
Hiring meter maids would be charged to the parking meter budget, but would release the two policemen for police work, was the thought expressed.

No action was taken on the ideas. Neither was there any action on the parking rate and time limit proposals and proposals to change parking ordinances and buy more meters for the 5-year replacement program begun last year.

City Atty. Jury will be asked whether the city may accept the new meter prices quoted last year by the successful bidder without advertising again for bids.

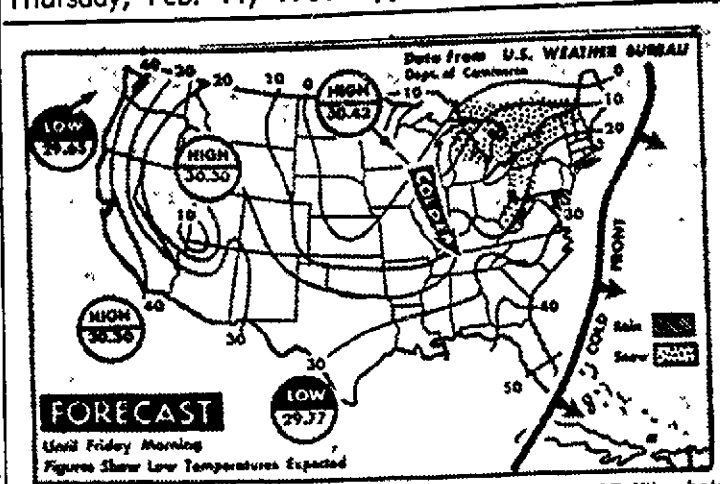

Two Alternatives
Committee limited discussion of the proposed new rates and time limits to two qualifications:

1. Adopting the entire plan, except for hiking College avenue charges to 5 cents for 30 minutes.

2. Adopting the entire plan except to limit the 5 cents for 30 minutes charge to the two or three key College avenue blocks.

Further discussion was put off pending an attempt to draft all proposals in one package.

Hire Expert To Supervise Pesticides Use

Madison — The Wisconsin Canners association said Wednesday it has set up a program for using trained plant fieldmen to supervise the use of pesticides in all fields growing canning crops.

The organization said it sought to prevent a loss similar to that suffered by the cranberry industry last fall when some supplies failed to reach market because of improper use of chemical weed killers.

M. P. Verhulst, Madison, executive secretary of the association, said plans for the program were worked out at a meeting of growers, canning plant representatives and experts from the University of Wisconsin and the state department of agriculture.

He said that when inspections are made from the planting to the harvest there will be written records to show chemicals used, the amounts, manner of application and when applied. He added that the industry has had strict rules in the past on use of pesticides but now believes its program is the best in the foods industry to safeguard against hazards.

Car Dives 15 Feet; Driver Slightly Hurt

St. Louis — Mrs. Alfreda Vickers drove by a barricade by mistake and got herself into a real hole. Her car skidded into a 15-foot construction excavation, landing upside down.

She was only slightly injured, but found she was unable to climb the steep sides of the muddy hole. It was an hour later before a passerby heard her cries for help and summoned aid.

University Votes Against ROTC

East Lansing, Mich. — The academic senate at Michigan State university has voted to end the school's compulsory military science (ROTC) program.

The decision leaves the fate of the 43-year-old program in the hands of the MSU board of trustees. The board presumably will take action at its meeting Thursday.

The board chairman, Dr. Connor Smith of Pinconning, hinted recently that he and his colleagues might split three to three on the proposal. The effect of this would be to continue the program.

The academic senate, comprised of faculty members, voted Monday 400-248 to halt the program. The 648 of the 1,018 members voted in a secret ballot. It was the largest ballot cast on any question ever to come before the body.

The senate proposed that the ROTC program, now required for freshmen and sophomores, be made voluntary by September of 1961.

However a 1-term course on political and military affairs would be required of all male freshmen who are not veterans or citizens of foreign countries.

Letters from the many who seek the expense-free European trip continue to flood the desk of the editor, and their reasons for wishing to make the trip are legion.

One elderly gentleman wishes he could return to his native land to see if a certain farm girl is still in his little home town—a little girl who, he remembers, gazed into his eyes minutes at a time when they were in school together. A fine letter it is, too.

A surprising number indicate their main purpose for wishing a trip to Europe is based on religion.

One man wrote: "Most of our religious heritage came from Europe and I would just like to see if the Europeans have preserved it . . . I want to visit the great cathedrals of Europe, regardless of faith, as the same God dwells in them all."

A young woman writes: "European culture and the growth of Christianity has been one of my greatest interests . . . I want to kneel at the Shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes and thank her for the blessings received from the hand of God through her intercession."

Aged Capuchin Monk

"As a climax, there is an ancient monastery south of view, thus: 'Too many people, and I'm one of them, take for granted the privileges we Capuchin monk, Padre Pio. He is the only living recognized stigmatist. To be able to see him celebrate the Mass would be an experience I would remember as long as I live."

An interesting percentage of the total expressed a wish to show that they could be good neighbors with European peoples, and to act—as one writer put it, "as an American should act in a foreign country. In order to have peace, in the world," he added, people of foreign countries must know what the Americans are really like and how we Americans live."

A similar sentiment was expressed by a lady who then moved to another point of view, thus: "Too many people, and I'm one of them, take for granted the privileges we have here in America. I think if I had the chance to visit Europe I would appreciate more these privileges."

Many Camera Fans

The camera fans came out in full force, too. One man

Contest Entries Due by Feb. 15

Ride along to Europe—free!

A lucky winner (it could be you) can win an all-expense paid trip to Europe along with Charlie House.

If you can write a letter you can win. Just send a note (250 words or less) entitled: "I want to go to Europe with Charlie House because . . ."

The best letter—the best reason—may win you the coveted prize. Write that letter today. Contest closes Feb. 15.

wrote: "I have seen some of Charlie's pictures and, frankly, he is a lousy photographer." Then he went on to list the type of photographic equipment he owns.

Other camera fans indicated that their picture coverage would greatly enhance the stories I file to this newspaper, and, on that basis, ought to be chosen as the winner of the European trip.

One anxious mother of Appleton requested a trip for her teenage son who has a serious heart condition and is not expected to live for many years.

Finale to Life

"For him to have this trip as a grand finale to a sweet and precious life would be a beautiful thing," she wrote. Regrettably, though, it would also be a sad one—and a dangerous one.

Some youngsters applied for their teacher whose prime classes are in European history.

"She has never been to Europe, but she knows it so well as to teach it in an exciting way. How much better she could make her work and her life if she were to be the winner of the wonderful trip to Europe!" they wrote.

A student (I think I may not reveal his name although I am tempted because his letter was a good one) asked for the trip for a teacher. Mrs. Robert Treiber of Gillett. He explained that she has been a world history teacher. He wrote, in part:

Knows History

"If she went to Europe she would know what ancient sites and places of history to look for because she has taught about them for years . . . Remember, you would not be helping just one person by letting her go along. You would be helping most of the children in Gillett who will ever take world history."

A bright, cheerful lady said she would promise Mrs. House that she would keep me out of mischief, and that she would promise "the boss" that I will meet my deadlines.

Her letter included this amusing line: "It could easily have been said of me,

"see Naples and die," so let's go there last."

A literate fellow, a former fighter pilot, makes the reasonable statement. He saw many of the places from the air, dive bombing in Holland, strafing in France, and bombing in Berlin. After 63 bombing missions, he would like—he said—to see Europe from the ground.

Family Request

An Irish girl, presumably wed to an American soldier and a war bride, made an appeal on the grounds that she had not seen her parents in Galway, Ireland, since she came to this country. She has four children, she wrote, and she would like her parents to see them, too.

"I know I am asking a lot to request tickets for five people," she said, "but I thought I'd try."

One woman was as honest as ever could be. Wrote she to the boss:

Gladiolus Society To Show Color Slides

The Fox River Valley Gladiolus society will show color slides of the gladiolus arrangements of floral designer Carl Starker at 3 p. m. Sunday at the Appleton YMCA, 131 S. Oneida street.

The program will feature instructions on growing gladiolus, a resume of the society's activities, and an invitation to the state gladiolus show here in August. Mrs. E. A. Nelson, Neenah, is program chairman. Garden club members and interested gardeners have been invited.

Lady Luck smiles on me and presents me with an expense paid trip such as this, I will never get to Europe to enjoy first-hand all the wonders of the Old World. I know you have made Charlie very happy—why don't you make me happy, too?"

Special Hearts That Say 'Be Mine' Designed to Please One's Valentine

BY LILLIAN MACKESY
Post-Crescent Food Editor

Whether the man of your heart is in kindergarten or a grandfather... he's sure to go for any of these treats for Feb. 14. Since the annual day dedicated to romance falls on Sunday this year, the gal who cooks has a chance to please from breakfast to midnight snack time.

Special recipes picked for their heart motif run from a sweetheart of a coffee cake for Sunday breakfast to delicious fancy sandwiches just right for late party fare to team with an assortment of chocolate candies. The open-faced, heart-shaped sandwiches also make delicious bridge luncheon food on the Valentine theme and may be served with a steaming hot beverage or with an added tossed salad for heartier eating.

The Petit Fours... rich with walnuts and topped with maraschino cherries... are easy to bake and decorate despite their elegant looks. Aluminum foil layer cake pans make the baking of a pink frosted Sweetheart Cake or the molding of a smooth Couer a la Creme dessert an easy task... for sheer drama at dinnertime there's the Flaming Heart meringue and fruit dessert... but the simplest Valentine trick of them all is to dress up an ordinary pudding for the occasion with a chocolate candy heart as a topping.

Petit Fours

- 1 cup butter, softened
- 1 1/2 cups sifted confectioner's sugar
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 5 eggs
- 2 tablespoons maraschino cherry juice
- 2 cup ground walnuts
- 2 cups sifted cake flour
- 1/3 cup finely chopped maraschino cherries
- 1 pound confectioner's sugar
- 5 tablespoons warm water
- sliced maraschino cherries

Cream butter and 1 1/2 cups sifted confectioner's sugar. Add vanilla, eggs, cherry juice and walnuts; mix well. Fold in flour and chopped cherries. Turn into greased oblong pan. Bake in 350-degree oven 25 to 30 minutes or until done. Cool. Cut into 12 little cakes with heart-shaped cutter.

Blend pound of confectioner's sugar with warm water. Frost top and sides of petit fours. Garnish tops with sliced cherries.

Sweet Coffee Cake

- 1 cake compressed or dry yeast
- 1 cup lukewarm water
- 1 cup milk
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg
- 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 1/2 cup melted butter
- 2 1/2 cups sifted flour

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk; add shortening, sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add one cup flour and mix well; add softened yeast, egg and lemon rind. Add enough more flour to make soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until satiny smooth. Place in greased bowl; cover and let rise until double in bulk (about 1 1/2 hours).

Punch down, cover and let rest 10 minutes. Divide in halves. Roll out each half to long narrow sheet about 8 inches wide, 1/4-inch thick. Brush with melted butter and sprinkle with filling.

Roll jelly-roll fashion; seal edges firmly. Place rolls in two greased heart-shaped pans, sealing edges together. With sharp knife or scissors make cuts about 1 inch deep and 2 inches apart in top of roll. Let rise again until double in bulk. Bake in 375-degree oven about 30 minutes.

Beat egg whites with lemon juice until they form soft peaks. Add sugar gradually, one-fourth cup at a time; beat continuously until very stiff but not dry. Line cookie sheet with brown paper. Draw a heart shape (10 inches across top) on paper. Spread meringue to cover shape; then pile around edge to form 2-inch high rim. Bake in preheated, 250-degree oven one hour and 10 minutes. Turn off heat. Cool meringue in oven for several hours or overnight. Just before serving, fill with ice cream and then add plum sauce.

Drop-Leaf Counter for Pass-Through

A drop leaf addition to the pass-through counter enlarges it to table-wide convenience during meal preparation, and disappears when the pass-through opening is closed. On the dining room side, the drop leaf makes sure that there's no awkward projection into the room between meals, although it's handy to pull a stool up for snack refreshments.

Here the drop leaf idea is used on both sides of the pass-through, one on the kitchen side of the wall, too. The widening of the counter surface this way makes cutting a pass-through in an existing wall practical where it might not be otherwise—a counter hardly wider than the wall depth is seldom useful enough. Cover the complete counter with wood to match a wood wall in the dining room, or paint it to match a painted wall so the extra leaf is inconspicuous in the dropped position.

Here's how to rearrange the furniture without hustle or muscle—send for Elizabeth Hillyer's Furniture Arrangement Kit, which shows you how to do it on paper. Included are 126 furniture cut-outs, instructions on how to make floor plans of your own rooms just as a professional decorator does, tips on good arrangements. Enclose 50 cents, please, with your request to Miss Hillyer at this newspaper. Please allow approximately 3 weeks for mail delivery.

Fast Action May Block Long Suit

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

U.S. Masters Team Champion

When an opponent leads his long suit against your no-trump contract, you usually refuse the first trick or two.
Sometimes, however, this hold-up play is wrong.

South dealer.

East-West vulnerable.

1 D Pass 1 H Pass

1 NT Pass 3 NT All pass

Opening lead—C-6

West leads the six of clubs, and you are South. How do you plan the play?

If you refuse the first trick,

you will be defeated. East wins the first trick with the queen of clubs and returns a club. West covers with the 10 of clubs (or with the king if you play the jack) to make sure of continuing clubs until the ace is forced out.

Sooner or later you must take a diamond finesse. West wins with the king of diamonds and beats you with the rest of the clubs.

Correct Play

The correct play is to win the very first trick with dummies ace of clubs. You try the diamond finesse, losing to the king.

Now West cannot defeat you.

If he leads a low club to the queen, East cannot continue the suit. If West, instead, leads out the king of clubs, he will set up your jack.

Granted that the play works as the cards lie. How can you tell that playing the ace will work better than refusing the first trick?

You are concerned only if West has five clubs. If the suit breaks 4 to 3, you can well afford to lose three clubs and the king of diamonds.

West has presumably led his fourth highest club. He has three clubs higher than the six.

What are those clubs?

Odd 4 to 2

West cannot have K-Q-10, K-

10-9, K-Q-8, or 10-9-8. He would have led the king from the first of these, the 10 from any of the others.

The other possibilities are K-

Q-9, K-Q-8, K-10-8, K-

9-8, Q-10-8, and Q-9-8. In the first two cases it will pay you to let the first trick ride around to your jack. But in the other four cases, you can block

the suit by playing dummy's ace.

To sum up, the odds are 4 to

2 in favor of playing dummy's ace at the first trick.

Now that you have analyzed the position, you can remember it in a shortened form.

Don't hold up with A-x-x opposite J-x-x.

You can usually block the suit by taking the ace.

Daily Question

As dealer you hold: S-2 7 2,

H-A 8 5 3, D-Q J 6, C-A 5 2.

What do you say?

Answer: Using standard bidding methods, you must pass.

If you use the "weak no-trump," you bid 1 NT to show balanced distribution and 12 to 14 points.

Love Blooms In Home for Retired Folks

Seattle—Among other things, they got tired of playing single solitaire.

So William Holt and Laura Bonner were married yesterday in an old folks' home where romance blossomed over the card tables.

He's 96. She's 85.

"The Lord said man should be married," said the Rev. A.
L. Hillman, "but he didn't say at what age."

Said the bride: "Why should I be nervous? This is my third time, you know."

Mrs. Bonner's first marriage ended in divorce many years ago. Her second husband died in 1953.

Holt's first wife died about 30 years ago.

Mrs. Katherine Lowe, who runs the home for the Volunteers of America, provided the "single solitaire" explanation.

The newlyweds, who'll continue to live at the home, put it differently. They just said they were lonely and fell in love.

Office Romance Blossoms Into Full-Fledged Marriage Mix-Up

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: This is old stuff to you but it means my whole life. I'm hopelessly in love with my boss and he loves me.

The man I married 15 years ago is quiet, stupid and boring. We have two children. I've always worked for him and made as much money as my husband.

My boss' wife is a social snob who fills her life with parties, visits to the massage parlor and high-sounding charity drives. She doesn't know anything about her husband's business, cares less and they have nothing to talk about except their children's poor report cards.

He wants to marry me but is afraid of the scandal. I know we could be exquisitely happy together. My marriage is dead and so is his. Why shouldn't we have a life together? — Kitty

Dear Kitty: If you'd get off the boss' lap long enough to have a good talk with your husband, he might offer a few suggestions on how to bring some life back into that gasping marriage.

The boss looks good because you see him at his best. Maybe if you had to listen to him snore, pick up his socks and shorts and put up with his relatives he'd present a different picture.

You say you and your husband have nothing in common. What more can people have in common than children?

I suggest you get out of that office and out of his life. If you expended some of that energy at home and treated your husband just half as nice as you treat The Boss, you might find him a lot less boring than you think.

DEAR ANN: Why do people ask for an honest opinion then get mad when you give it?

Just yesterday a good friend who is a widow asked what I thought of the man she's going with. I told the truth. He is homely, uncouth, dresses in atrocious taste and is below her mentally and socially.

The minute I finished she started to defend him and said indignantly "If that's the way you feel, you and your husband had better not come to my dinner party next week because he'll be there."

Another friend asked my opinion of the girl her son was dating. The girl has a poor reputation and comes from a cruddy family. I told her so. Three months later the boy married her and I was not invited to the wedding. Does it pay to be honest? — No Liar

Dear No: Some people are ruthless and destructive when asked for an "honest opinion." They mask cutting remarks with what they call "truth" and think this makes the cruelest comments ginger-peachy.

The next time you're asked for a frank opinion say something nice. Every person has at least one good thing to recommend him.

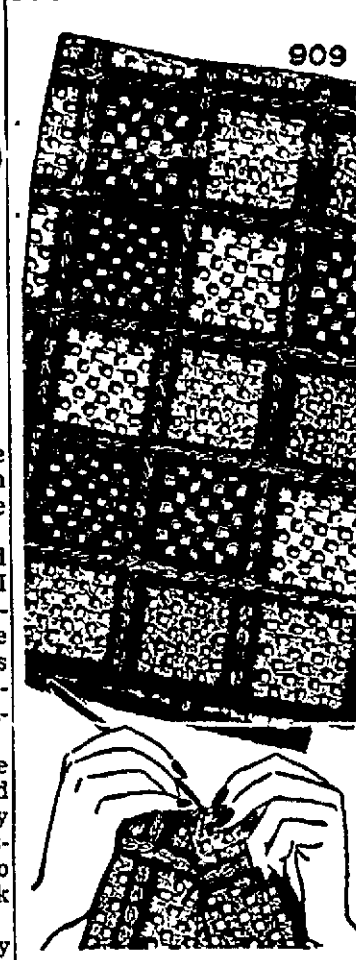

DEAR ANN: A recent column dealt with unordered merchandise sent to a reader in an attempt to raise money for a "worthy charity."

Better Business bureaus throughout the country have printed reams of information on this subject. They advise the public not to use the merchandise but not return it. This discourages the operators. If the victim is dunned for money he should advise the company that they will be sent a bill for storage. The way to destroy these rackets is by educating the public. Thank you, Ann. — Miami Better Business Bureau

Our Children

Imagination Is Child's Weapon Against Fear

BY ANGELO PATRI

Present-day teachers and parents, more than a few I fear, are giving neither time nor opportunity to the children to exercise their imaginations.

The very young ones come into the world endowed with imagination as a weapon against fear, against the pressures of a world for which they are not as yet prepared to live in. Did you ever see a little girl or boy battling an imaginary foe such as a wild animal hiding behind a chair? Ever meet a small child who peopled his days with imaginary playmates?

Of course. The children needed these imaginary creatures for some purpose clear to them, although hidden from the adults who have long forgotten such needs.

Tonic to Health Mistakenly they often try to induce the children to change, even going to the length of punishing them for such behavior and so do a great injustice to the children and likely, lay the foundation for trouble in days to come. The correct use of a healthy imagination is a tonic to mental health, a preventive of mental difficulties.

In the schools we find this bar to the use of imagination at work in the prescribed use of books that use only the working vocabulary of the children. In the early grades where the imagination is at its keenest, where the fairy tale and the folk tale are food for the anxiety-laden minds, they are given such gems as "Run, Jim, run."

You see, they might not ever glimpse the idea that a small boy could run. Maybe they might get an idea though that a boy could fly? But that would be dreaming, wouldn't it? So keep the child down to the facts of everyday.

Let Them Dream

Well, how about the accomplishments of the dreamers? The Wright brothers, Edison, Marconi, the nuclear scientists? If these people had not persisted in using their imaginations, had not battled against those who would keep them down to the facts as they appeared that day and hour, what then? If Henry Ford had not devoted every waking hour to his idea of the car that would run if an engine forced it to horses, men, armies, would not be enjoying the benefits his work bestowed upon them.

Please let small children invent as they please as long as they are healthy in mind and body. Let the growing boy and girl dream their dreams, try out their ideas, without discouraging them. And understand that fairy tales are children's literature. They know about everyday matters and need relief in their imaginary worlds. And we need people with cultivated imaginations.

Young Children Need to Exercise for Strength

By Dorothy V. Whipple, M. D.

Our muscles are part of us. To be really healthy we must have muscles strong enough to be able to carry on the activities of everyday living. If we are city or suburban dwellers we do not need the muscular power of a champion athlete, but we do need muscles able to hold our bodies in good efficient posture to move us about without undue fatigue. Muscles do not develop adequately without exercise.

There is a good bit of evidence to indicate that the softness of American life is depriving our children of the opportunity to grow muscles strong enough even for the sedentary life many of us lead. We are becoming a nation of the physically unfit in spite of our excellent medical care. When health is measured in terms of freedom from disease and good nutritional status America is one of the healthiest countries in the world, but measured in terms of muscular fitness we are outranked by all of Europe.

Physical Fitness
Bonnie Prudden, director of Institute of Physical Fitness, made a study of the physical fitness of American school children compared with similar groups in Italy, Austria and Switzerland. She discovered that over 50 per cent of American children failed to meet the minimum standards of physical fitness and that less than 10 per cent of the European children were in this low group.

The tests used by Miss Prudden were those known as the Krass - Weber tests for Minimum Physical Fitness.

There are six tests in all. They are very simple. All children over 4-years - old should be able to do them easily. Try them out with your children.

Test 1. Child lies flat on his back, hands under head. He is instructed to sit up. He should be able to do so without using his hands to help him.

Test 2. Same as 1 except that legs are bent at the knees.

Tests 1 and 2 determine the strength of the abdominal muscles.

Test 3. Child in same position. He is instructed to raise his feet about 10 inches, keeping his legs straight, and hold the position 10 seconds.

Posture Test
This test is for adequacy of muscles used in running and in keeping the body in good posture.

Test 4. The child lies on his abdomen, a small pillow is placed under his hips. With his feet held down by the examiner he is instructed to raise his trunk and hold it steady for 10 seconds.

Test 5. Same as 4 except child is instructed to raise his legs, keeping knees stiff while his trunk is held down by the examiner.

Test 6. Child stands on his feet and bends forward to touch hands to floor without bending knees.

The child who can successfully perform these six tests has the minimum physical requirements for a normal life.

Begin Early
Body building begins in infancy. The child with ample opportunity to exercise his body should have muscular strength to perform these tests by the age of four or surely by the age of six. If he cannot pass the test at six he can strengthen his muscles by specific exercises without too much struggle.

If at 10 he fails he will have to work harder to make the grade, at 16 it may be impossible for him to repair the damage done to a muscular system permitted to develop without adequate exercise.

Bonnie Prudden has written a book "Is Your Child Really Fit?" In this book she gives the results of the survey mentioned above and outlines exercises that will improve the muscular strength of children.

A Lovelier You

By Mary Sue Miller

Pearly Ears

Poets have likened the feminine ear to a pearly shell, and to a picture painted well. But we girls know that few ears measure up to such rhapsodizing. Most would come closer to the mark, however, were they given the proper lovelifying treatment. Some of the best follow:

Every ear benefits from the use of a complexion brush. Well-lathered, a brush gently but thoroughly cleanses delicate crevices of errant oils and make-up.

On ears that shine as only a small boy's should, use a facial-quality chamolis. It produces a mat finish when pressed to the ears, once they have been cleansed.

The secret of minimizing large ears is powder base. After applying it to your face, just whisk the residue from your hands on the ear shells. Earrings also aid this cause. For the job, they must be out-sized and important-looking. Bulky shapes, in covering so much ear, seem to dwarf it. A stunning design draws attention to itself, instead of to the ear.

For protruding ears, one answer is plastic surgery. As an aftermath, ears lie flat permanently. Another measure is pressing the ears to the head via double-faced cellophane tape. The result, although temporary, is most convincing.

Question on Taking Gift To Wedding

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: It would be easiest and safest for us to take our wedding present in the car with us when driving to my sister's for my niece's wedding, but I'm told that doing this would be out of order and that it must be sent ahead of time. Is this true?

Answer: If really difficult to send ahead of time it would be possible to take it as you suggest. The reason why presents are sent in advance is so that the bride herself can open them and enjoy seeing them and also put them on display for others to see. If taken to the wedding she would have no chance on that very busy day to look at it until her return from her wedding trip.

Telephone Manners
Dear Mrs. Post: When John Jones calls Jane Smith on the telephone (a social call) what is the proper thing for him to say? Does he say, "Hello, is Jane at home?" or "Hello, this is John Smith calling. Is Jane at home?"

Answer: "Hello, this is John Smith. Is Jane at home?" is in best taste.

Mrs. Post offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning etiquette. If you would like to have her booklet E-504, entitled, "Etiquette of Table Setting," send 25 cents in coin to Dept. E.P., care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N.Y.

Pans that are too light may warp or dent then you won't have the flat bottom to the pan which is important to make contact with the thermostat in the unit. Unless the pan makes good contact with this sensitive area built into the center of gas burners and electric units the heat won't adjust properly.

This little center unit operates like the control in your oven or in your iron. The thermostat maintains heat either by electricity going off and on or by the raising and lowering of the flame in the gas burner.

Pans of stainless steel, glass or enamel will transfer heat differently so you'll have to experiment in using them. It may be best to learn the proper setting with your aluminum pans then adjust the dial. Mark your recipe book once you have the right setting.

UW Survey

High School Size Won't Affect College Work

Students who graduated from parents of continuing from small high schools are no more likely to drop out of college than their colleagues from large high schools, University of Wisconsin Prof. J. K. Little has reported to the coordinating committee for higher education.

Prof. Little reported findings of a report of more than 34,000 students in Wisconsin high schools in 1957. His report followed students who went on to graduate from college, those who dropped out or failed in college and those who did not elect to go on to college.

Some of his findings were:

Marriage Difficulty

1. Students who drop out of college show a lack of interest as well as difficulty with college work. Marriage and financial factors also cause many drop outs, but they do not loom as the overriding causes.

2. Parents of discontinuing students differed significantly from parents of continuing students in occupation. Children whose fathers were in professional, executive or managerial positions were more likely to graduate than students whose parents were in lower-income occupations.

3. Children of parents who have gone to college are more likely to enter and graduate from advanced institutions.

Bright Students Drop

4. Of high school students in the upper 10 per cent of their classes, one-third failed to make a B average or better in college and one-fifth dropped out of school entirely. About 15 per cent of the top-ranking students failed to complete two years of college study.

5. Among top-ranking students who dropped out, the low grades were found in fields in which they had special training in high school.

6. Less than half of the top-ranking students in high school were able to achieve a

B average on the college level.

Prof. Little also reported on high school graduates who did not go to college. "These young men and women are moving into a world of work which is placing a premium upon high levels of technical skill and knowledge, but the needed levels of skill and knowledge are not present in the typical high school graduate," he said.

"How, when and where is this education to take place?" he asked. "Is this the province of the community college or, as in Wisconsin, of schools of adult and vocational education?"

Prof. Little also commented on inadequacies in college programs. "In general, college academic programs do not match the diversity of aptitudes and interest found among talented students," he said.

Colleges Conform

"A great deal of the much discussed pressure for conformity exists within the colleges themselves. Colleges strive to be alike, many consciously or unconsciously seeking to be images of some school of established prestige. It would be wholesome if colleges might elect to be individual, serving special groups of students in special ways.

Red Scientist Sends Important Papers to Britain

London — Dr. Igor Kurchatov, Russia's top atomic scientist, sent important research papers to London just before his death last week.

Kurchatov sent the papers by ordinary mail to Capt. Ian Maxwell, chairman of a British firm of scientific publishers.

The papers apparently gave details of recent Russian work to harness the power of the hydrogen bomb for civilian purposes, Maxwell said.

He emphasized that Kurchatov's action involved no breach of soviet security. The soviet recently agreed with the western powers to declassify research in this area, and these were the first papers on the subject to reach Britain.

Maxwell explained: "I wrote to Kurchatov some weeks ago asking if he would contribute original work for us. I never expected to hear again—at any rate not for a long while."

"When I got the papers in the post it was a great surprise—as great a surprise as the tragic news of his death."

Parental Conflicts Can Harm Children

Are you the kind of parents who disagree and argue about how to bring up your children? If so, what effect are your differences having on your children?

We often hear that parents should present a united front to their youngsters and settle arguments only when the children are out of hearing. A companion theory is that parents should be consistent: if they start out saying "no" to a child's demand, then they must stick to that "no."

This is perfectly good advice, says Dr. Catherine Street Chilman, assistant professor, Department of Family Living and Child development, Syracuse university, but it takes great control and objectivity—qualities we all too - average parents usually lack.

Disagree at Times

Probably all parents disagree at times about how to bring up their children. Some bicker regularly over trivial matters, while others quarrel violently, never reaching agreement on important issues, notes Dr. Chilman in a recent issue of Parents' magazine.

A good many disagreements between parents arise, she points out, because (a) they want different things for their children; (b) they themselves have different personalities and values, or (c) they may agree on what they want but disagree on the best way to get it for their children.

"These differences are heightened," the author observes, "when parents come from different national, religious, geographical or educational backgrounds. Their customs, values and goals are apt to conflict on the simplest levels." Much bitterness and confusion can be avoided, however, if they recognize how their backgrounds have formed their basic attitudes and reactions, and if they then try to develop tolerance and adaptability to the "other fellow's" point of view.

If parents learn to talk about their disagreements without undue bitterness, the chances are their children won't suffer. "Youngsters know their parents are not alike and when they see their parents work out compromises, they learn that differences need not lead to trouble and that people can live together happily even though they don't always agree," Dr. Chilman suggests.

Feel Guilty

On the other hand, if parents use their children as excuses for indirect attacks on each other as conflicts develop, the youngsters will suffer. "They may feel obscurely guilty when mom and dad quarrel, knowing they've somehow caused trouble, but not understanding why they're likely to be torn between loyalty to each parent," she states. "If parental arguments go on all the time, the children will become confused, not knowing what each day may bring or what will be expected of them."

There's also the case of parents who have such resentment toward each other that they cannot reach a working compromise on their own. Consequently, they can only push and pull their children destructively between them. In such situations it's best for them to seek family counseling or psychiatric help, the author cautions.

Most often, however, couples can make and remake good working compromises. If each parent recognizes that the other is also sincerely trying to give their children the best upbringing possible, then each can be more tolerant of the other's ideas.

Thus, by learning to support — not undermine — the other's special contributions to their children's well-being, parents can help develop more rounded personalities in their children than they possess themselves. And all this because of parental differences — not in spite of them.

Even autos can be hazards. A low flying whooper was killed last fall in Oklahoma by an auto coming over a rise in the road. Moreover, two of the four fledglings reported in Canada last summer apparently have been killed.

There are five captive birds in New Orleans and one at San Antonio but they no longer seem to be reproducing.

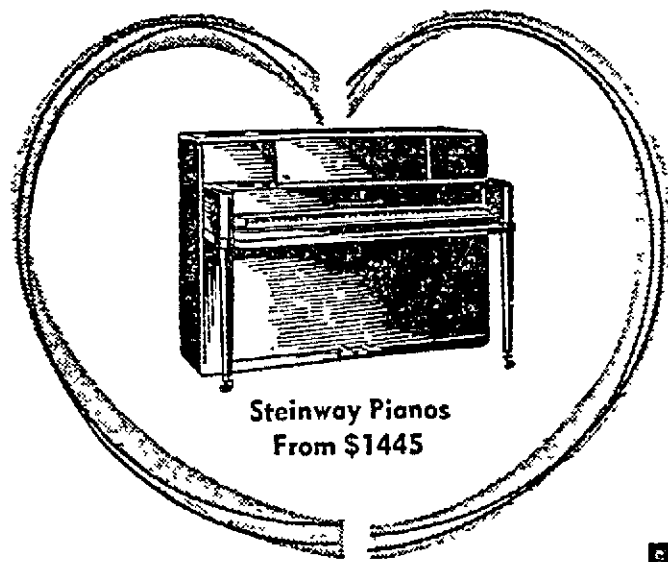

"The survival of the cranes is still very much a touch and go affair," says an Audubon society spokesman. "We would have to have a hundred birds before we felt confident. As it is they are vulnerable to any natural disaster, even though the hunters have been very cooperative. But we are hopeful."

Lawrence Says
Ike's Statement
On Wheat Is New Challenge

Political Aspects Overshadowed by Need for Action

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington — President Eisenhower has put up to congress the task of closing perhaps the biggest "gap" of them all—the agricultural gap. He says: "The government sustains a net cost of more than a $1,000 a minute — $1.500,000 every day—the year around, to stabilize wheat prices and income."

The president reveals that federal funds tied up in wheat approximate $3.5 billion, and makes this further point: "Although this means that well over 30 per cent of the total funds invested in inventories and loans of the commodity credit corporation goes for wheat, this crop provides only 6 per cent of the cash receipts from sales of farm products." It wouldn't be so disturbing if the financial support given the farm program was getting somewhere. Production, instead of being curtailed, is being stimulated. Mr. Eisenhower, in his latest message to congress, explains what's happening: "Day by day this program further distorts wheat markets and supplies. Its only future is ever higher cost. Inexorably it generates ever larger surpluses which must be expensively stored. If our government does not act quickly and constructively, the danger is very real that this entire program will collapse under the pressure of public indignation, and thousands of our farming people will be hurt."

Challenge to Politicians
What can be done about it? This is a political year. The so-called "farm vote" is supposed to be drawing away from the Republicans largely because the administration has refused to go in for higher and higher subsidies. The president has in effect, challenged the politicians in both parties. He says: "Whatever the legislative approach, whether toward greater freedom or more regimentation, it must be sensible and economically sound and not a political poulitice. And it must be enacted promptly. I will approve any constructive solution that the congress wishes to develop."

The president then discusses several basic principles and plans, and promises to approve any one of them or "a combination of constructive proposals."

Urges Expansion
He doesn't abandon the idea of farm subsidies and, indeed, urges expansion of the present conservation reserve program up to 60 million acres. The secretary of agriculture would be authorized to make payments in kind for reduction of acreage devoted to crops in surplus and for retirement of such acreage from cultivation. The main condition imposed is that measures must be provided to keep total production below total consumption while this program is in operation. He says that, lacking such "safeguards," a payment-in-kind procedure "would overload the free market and thereby depress prices."

Mr. Eisenhower has not heretofore offered such a flexibility of approach. He declares that, if congress wishes to propose a plan of its own as an alternative, he will approve it "so long as the plan is constructive." He insists that "the important thing for farmers, and for all other Americans, is for us to act sensibly and to act swiftly." Congress cannot dodge the issue. It will have to offer a legislative plan to remedy the present situation. This will tempt some influential members of congress to write the kind of bill that will bring a presidential veto. But it is unlikely that such a measure would command a two-thirds vote to override a veto. Congress is very much divided on the farm question.

Make Good Use
The Republicans will make good use of the president's message. They will point out that he has placed directly upon congress the major responsibility for originating farm legislation. If no suitable legislation is offered, the Democrats—since they are in

AHS Students
Enjoy Concert
Of Jazz, Strings

Appleton High school students enjoyed the jazz trio and string orchestra combination at an assembly concert by the AHS orchestra. Russell Thorne, orchestra director, composed a number which had a definite beat, minor key, and combination of jazz and strings.

In the jazz trio were Thorne, piano; Findlay Park, drums, and George Welland, bass viol. Sharon Bauerlein, first violinist, played "Blue Moon", with the trio and string accompaniment. Strings alone presented "Lambourin" by Andre Ernest Gretry. The full orchestra opened the program with the Grand March from "Aida", by Verdi.

Highlights from "My Fair Lady" included "Get Me to the Church on Time," "On the Street Where You Live," "I've Grown Accustomed to Her Face" and "I Could Have Danced All Night." Hildegard Gives Concert for Nuns

The famous chanteuse, Hildegard, gave an impromptu, private concert for eight nuns Sunday at St. Elizabeth hospital.

Hildegard came to Appleton to visit Sister M. Kostka, her cousin, who is recovering from a stroke. She arrived at 1:30 p.m. and left at 4:30 p.m. for Chicago.

She sang for the group and accompanied herself on the piano. The songs were recorded. Another cousin of Sister Kostka, Mrs. Roy Schwanke, also was present.

Works Board Backs
Change in Sidewalk
Replacement Pledge

An ordinance establishing a 2-year guarantee for sidewalk construction by the city contractor has been ordered drawn by the board of public works. The present guarantee is for five years.

The board's action endorses a recommendation of the street and sanitation committee made at the last council meeting.

The ordinance looks forward to a special assessment for sidewalk work that will include a charge of 1.25 cents per square foot, or about $3.60 per 60-foot lot, to insure the walk against defects not the responsibility of the contractor or his materials.

Board members, upon questioning of Mayor Mitchell, and a special fund need not be established, the engineering department will keep records of the amount being paid toward replacement.

The charge is equal to the replacement costs of 1957 and 1958 determined on a per square foot basis.

Examination for Weights, Measures Post Set Feb. 20
Examination of 117 applicants for city sealer of weights and measures will be at 8:30 a. m. Saturday, Feb. 20, at Appleton Vocational school, the state bureau of personnel has informed the city.

After written and oral tests, the state bureau will recommend the top three applicants to the mayor for selection of a final candidate. The job pays $350 a month, plus $50 monthly car allowance.

New Fire Alarm Panel To Cost City $6,540
A new fire alarm control panel for the main fire station will cost $6,540, the city learned.

Gamewell company, Newton Upper Falls, Mass., the only bidder, quoted the price to the board of public works. The public safety committee later in the day agreed to accept it.

November budget estimates placed cost of the panel at about $9,000.

control of both houses of congress—will have to accept the blame. Conversely, if the Democrats come up with a measure that the president can sign, it helps the Republicans to take the issue to a large extent out of the 1960 presidential campaign.

The next administration, whether Democratic or Republican, will have to come to grips with the same agricultural problem. A start might as well be made now to close the "gap" between the low net income of many farmers and the excessive production of certain farm products which, the president says pointedly, has been "largely due to economic distortions induced by years of federal interference."

Grave Doubts Raised By Polaris Missile

Dependability of U. S. Estimates
 Vital to National Defense

BY JOSEPH ALSOP

Washington — Go to the old Navy department, to hear the story of the great Polaris submarine - and missile project. It is an inspiring experience. It is also a deeply reassuring experience — until you begin to think about it.

Alsop Here are just about the most technically advanced weapons man has ever devised, considerably more complex, over all, than our Atlas ICBM. Here is a weapons system requiring many tens of thousands of human and mechanical components, ranging from men for the missile - crews to air cleaners for the submarines, to fabulously accurate gyroscopes for the missiles themselves. Here is a project demanding continuous, coordinated forward movement on countless different fronts.

This marvelous movement began, almost from scratch, in 1956. Less than four years ago, the Polaris project was set up on the lines of a smaller Manhattan district, under the brilliant and hard driving Adm. W. F. Raborn Jr. Yet today, all the fantastically complex parts are nearly ready to be fitted together in the first operational Polaris. Before the year is out, the George Washington will be at sea with 16 missiles aboard, any one of which will be able to kill a medium-sized city. Two kinds of doubts.

The Polaris project is inspiring because it shows what we in America can do if we put our minds to it, and it is reassuring because it promises important reinforcements for the American deterrent. But this project is also the very opposite of reassuring, if you just crank the Polaris experience into the current great debate about national defense. At bottom, the defense debate concerns only one question, whether the Soviets now have or will soon have the small number of intercontinental ballistic missiles needed to wipe out the American deterrent, which is now totally vulnerable. Only 150 Soviet ICBMs are now needed. The national intelligence estimates say that the Soviets do not now have 150 ICBMs, and that they will not have enough later. The president has therefore neglected to budget the relatively modest sums of money that are needed to make the American deterrent less vulnerable. Yet merely by its brilliant success, the Polaris project raises at least two kinds of grave doubts about the dependability of the national intelligence estimates. On the one hand, it raises technical doubts. For example, the able director of the central intelligence agency, Allen W. Dulles, has testified that there are good reasons to believe the Soviets do not have weapons crews for a decisive number of ICBMs. But these reasons are not so persuasive when you note that 33 men will service and if necessary fire a total of 16 Polaris missiles.

Organizational Doubts Suppose that a Soviet ICBM weapons crew has to be proportionally four times larger than a Polaris weapons crew, but that the Soviet ICBMs are as fully automated as Polaris, and that the Soviet ICBM crews are as economically organized as Adm. Raborn's Polaris crews.

You get a figure of only about 1,300 men in specially trained weapons crews to fire 150 Soviet ICBMs. And how on earth can anyone but the all-seeing Almighty be sure that 1,300 men have not been specially trained somewhere in the vast reaches of the Soviet land mass?

In the same way, the Polaris project also raises what may be called grave organizational doubts about the national intelligence estimates. Former Assistant Sec. of the Air Force Prevost Gardner, who was eventually fired for being too right about the missile gap, wisely fought for a Manhattan district type organization of our ICBM program. Gardner was defeated in this fight, however. Under Gen. Benjamin Schriever, great things have nonetheless been accomplished with our ICBM program. But because Gardner was defeated, Gen. Schriever has always had to work through channels, and mostly through half-clogged channels. Hence Schriever has lacked the immense organizational advantages of Adm. Raborn in the Polaris project, and of Gen. Groves in the Manhattan district.

Reflections on Administration Meanwhile, under the prevailing estimating system, our own ICBM performance is our yardstick for Soviet ICBM performance. The Soviet program began years before ours did. Only suppose that the boss of the Soviet program has enjoyed the same organizational advantages as Adm. Raborn. Then there is no reason why all the needful components — missiles, weapons crews, launchers, and so on — may not suddenly be brought together into a complete, decisively powerful Soviet ICBM system in the near future, just as all the Polaris components will be brought together in the near future in the George Washington.

These doubts about the national intelligence estimates do not reflect on the CIA, which only claims to produce informed estimates, not gospel truth. These doubts reflect, rather, on the administration's use of the estimates.

This is the crucial point. The national intelligence estimates may be correct to the last decimal. Pray God they are. But they may also be wrong, even by a very narrow margin, the error can be fatal.

Little Chute Legion Awards Bond to Oratorical Winner

Little Chute — Members of the American Legion post voted Monday night to award a $25 savings bond to Judy Hantschel after it was announced by Orville Bongers, local oratorical contest chairman, she would represent St. John's High school in the Ninth district contest.

Leo Lamers reported a committee of Legionnaires had accepted the responsibility of maintaining the main ice rink in the village, located on the athletic field. Legionnaires will flood and supervise the rink thus freeing village crews for other work. Weather permitting, the present rink will be maintained by the committee for the balance of the skating season while next year the group will assume responsibility from the start.

Reports Given
Harold Van Dyke reported on the Mid-winter conference and Willard Van Handel reported the local post was given special recognition at the conference for its work at Camp American Legion. Each year members of the Little Chute unit make one or two trips to the camp for a work party.

Plans were announced by Vincent Jansen, chairman, to hold the Legion birthday party March 20 at the Combined Locks pavilion. A membership party for members and wives is scheduled Feb. 20 at the Wrightstown Legion hall. Jack Metz was appointed Memorial Day parade marshal to be assisted by Joseph Hietpas and Roger Koehn. Delegates named to the Appleton county council meeting were Martin Janson, Ray Reider, James Peeters, Merlin Versteegen, Joseph Hietpas, Harold Wynboom and Clair Peeters.

An effort is being made to secure a manager and coach for the Junior Legion Baseball team. Men interested can contact Ronald Geiger, commander. The post will have two bowling teams entered in the ninth district test at Elcho on Sunday and will send four teams to the state tournament at Greenveld.

Dollar Days Set in Village

Businessmen Seek Improvements for Off-Street Parking

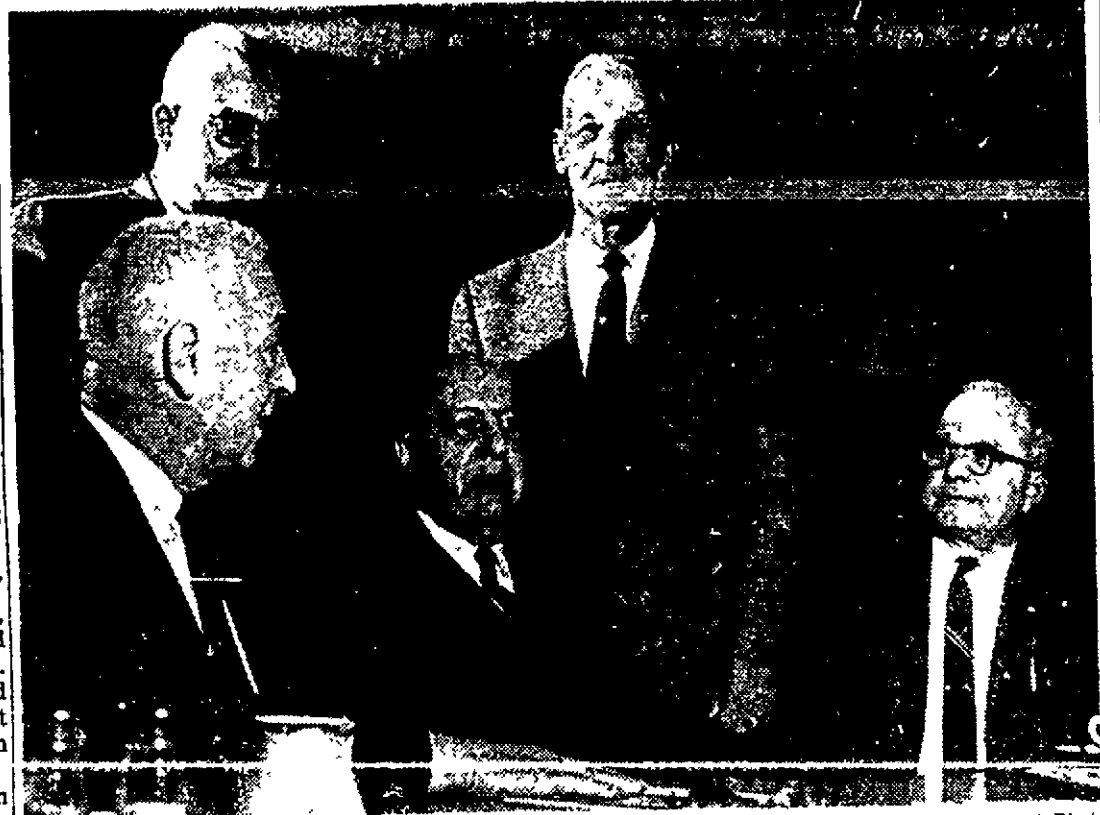

Little Chute — Plans were announced for the first dollar days of the year at a meeting of the Little Chute Businessmen's association, the event scheduled Feb. 25, 26 and 27.

Price cards and window banners will be furnished, without charge, by the retail division of the association. Material is to be distributed Feb. 22 and merchants not contacted can call Joseph Boots, chairman.

A discussion on downtown parking was held and members voted to meet with the village board to see if the Grand avenue parking lot can be improved. Businessmen seek proper lighting and a sign designating the parking area.

Members felt the improvement of the lot would lead to merchants and their employees using the lot, thus leaving the street open for customer space. Police personnel will also be contacted on parking.

Christmas decorations of past and future years were discussed and members felt the ornaments should be erected earlier this year and possibly change the erection pattern. Further discussion will be held on the matter at the March 3 session.

County Officials Had Dinner at the new Outagamie county hospital and inspected the building after the board session Tuesday. Norbert Loecke and Supv. George Miller, Shiocton, standing left to right, converse with, seated, left to right, Corporation Counsel Raymond P. Dohr, Dr. J. B. MacLaren, chairman of the hospital trustees, and board Chairman Alvin Fulcer. Loecke is hospital superintendent.

Grade School Principals, Boards to Air Problems

Combined Locks — A meeting of principals from Outagamie county elementary schools will be held at 8 p.m. Monday at Black Creek for general discussion, with school board members, on various topics, according to Wayne Hull, group president.

Sixteen elementary schools are expected to be represented. Topics to be considered include, "The Role of School Board Members in Today's Expanding Elementary School," "Organization and Federal Aid To Education," "Local Policies on Building and Related Problems," "The National Defense Act-

Deny Petition To Divert for Irrigation

Farmer Wanted to Use Water From Streams in Oconto

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — In spite of representations by two influential leaders in conservation affairs, the public service commission has denied the petition of an Oconto county farmer for a permit to divert water from two Oconto streams for agricultural irrigation purposes.

John Konkel of Lena wanted the right to use public water from the Oconto and Little rivers to irrigate farm lands in the towns of Stiles and Oconto.

He was represented at a public hearing by James Plier, Oconto, with backing from Sen. Reuben LaFave. Both are prominent exponents of outdoors sportsmen's interests in the region.

Lacked Approval

But the commission ruled that the permit cannot be granted because Konkel had not had the direct approval of downstream riparian owners for his proposal to divert water from the streams.

The commission quoted a recent supreme court decision which interpreted the meaning of the statutes governing irrigation permits. The court explicitly held that the consent of other riparians affected by a diversion proposal is required. The commission ruling was one of the first since the court issued its judgment.

Cut Number

The restriction is likely to cut down the number of irrigation applications.

The provisions of the irrigation laws have been the subject of a running debate between the outdoor sports interests, and notably trout fishermen and farm groups. The legislature last year adopted a compromise law which was largely the work of Sen. LaFave as the representative of a district containing ardent representatives of the conflicting viewpoints.

Jewish Library Setup in Germany

Nuernberg, Germany — A special library on the history of the Jews and their religion is to be added to the Nuernberg city library.

The library contains some 8,000 rare volumes carefully hidden during the Nazi times and found by U.S. occupation forces in 1945. The books have been in German custody since.

Many of the former owners of the books died in concentration camps or fled from the Nazis and cannot be located, the city government announced.

Nuernberg was picked as the site for the library because it was here, at their mass party rally of 1935, that the Nazis announced their first anti-Semitic laws.

Works Board Awards Contract for New Supply of Gasoline

The Texaco company has been recommended by the board of public works to supply 10,000 to 15,000 gallons of gasoline for the street department at 12.15 cents a gallon, the low bid among eight submitted.

Bids on public works equipment, including a street flusher, sedan, two truck chassis, refuse body, and pickup truck were referred to Director of Public Works Duszynski for tabulation.

Industrialists to Study Hospital Space Pinch

Administrator Reports Nursery, X-ray, Laboratory, Storage Areas Inadequate

Kaukauna — Five prominent Kaukauna industrial men have been appointed by the executive board of the Kaukauna Community hospital to undertake a study of present and future needs of the hospital, according to Dr. George L. Boyd, executive committee president.

A decision to conduct such a survey resulted from the annual fall meeting at which the need for additional nursery, X-ray, laboratory and general storage space was noted. When the study is completed, the committee will report its findings together with estimated cost for needed additions to the executive committee.

Men Selected

Conducting the survey will be E. H. Jennings, chairman of the board of the Thilmany and Oconto.

He was represented at a public hearing by James Plier, Oconto, with backing from Sen. Reuben LaFave. Both are prominent exponents of outdoors sportsmen's interests in the region.

Rainfall Helped Power Company,

Adequate and well distributed rainfall resulted in a successful year for the Wisconsin Michigan Power company, J. S. Wells, assistant vice president and general manager, said Tuesday.

Wells spoke to consulting engineers and representatives of the power company and the Wisconsin Public Service commission, meeting at the North Shore Golf club.

Included were discussions of precipitation, soil moisture, water table elevations and stream flow as they affect hydroelectric plant operations in the Menominee river basin, where Wisconsin Michigan generates power for use in Appleton.

Pulp and Paper company; Eric C. Wussow, vice president of foundries of the Giddings and Lewis Machine Tool company; Vincent Dohlf, president of Badger Northland, Inc.; Edwin R. Lemke, Kaukauna manager of the Steiner Tissue company, and Walter Roloff, president of Roloff Manufacturing company.

Mrs. Bernice Elliott, hospital administrator, reported the nursery was designed for nine bassinets and at times as many as 19 have been used although normally it ranges between nine and 12 on a full time basis.

Additional space is needed in the laboratory as three people are now working in an area originally designed for one technician, she continued. Often equipment must be put away before another can be used due to crowded table space.

The X-ray room has become inadequate due to the lack of space for storing current films. In emergency cases, the X-ray room may be in use which forces the hospital staff to move the mobile X-ray unit into patients' rooms.

Mrs. Elliott pointed out, at times beds are kept in the hall as a patient needs a private room and the hospital is without vacant rooms into which the second bed can be moved. Lack of general storage space sometimes prevents the hospital from purchasing medical supplies in sufficient quantities to warrant the better prices. The hospital administrator also warned, the medical record room will be inadequate within two or three years.

Red China Bids For Return of Chinese Abroad

Offers Much Better Living Conditions
Than Now Prevail

BY ROY ESSOYAN

Hong Kong —Communist China is telling the overseas Chinese in Indonesia that a new life—much better than that of the average Chinese on the communist mainland—awaits them if they return to the motherland.

The promise is part of a stepped-up propaganda campaign to lure overseas Chinese home following the Indonesian government's ban Jan. 1 on alien Chinese traders in rural areas. At least two ships are en route to Jakarta to repatriate Chinese wishing to leave Indonesia.

A communist China news agency report from Canton said work has started in South China's Kwangtung province on dormitories, apartments and homes to house the repatriates, schools to educate their young and clinics and hospitals to treat their sick. A hydroelectric power plant is planned to provide power for industrial use and lighting for returnees' homes.

Special Treatment

Other reports have said returnees will receive special dispensation for rations and the "luxury goods" to which they are accustomed. Unlike the rest of the people in Red China, the returned Chinese will be given land to grow their own food and the right to sell their excess production to the state, according to these reports.

Special "overseas Chinese villages" with modern buildings and other amenities unavailable to local residents are being expanded. These special villages were built some time ago for the steady trickle of overseas Chinese who chose to return home in years past. People who visited them from here reported seeing refrigerators, cars and even washing machines in some of these special communities.

But many reports indicate that these special amenities for overseas Chinese are strictly temporary, aimed primarily at attracting the returnees home, and adjusting them, during a transitional phase, to the rigors of life in red China today.

A recent China News Agency report said all these amenities "are designed to accustom them (the overseas Chinese) step by step to the way of life in the motherland so that eventually they can fall in line with the rest of their fellow countrymen."

These Days

Pro-Communist Regime in Cuba Example of Red's Infiltration

BY GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

New York — The most serious problem facing the United States today is Cuba. A pro communist state has been established in Cuba with the clear objective of bargaining with Soviet Russia for the munitions of war in return for the Cuban crops of sugar, rice, tobacco and whatever else is to be offered.

It is impossible to believe so important a figure as Anastas Mikoyan would spend a week in Cuba, a small, apparently unimportant country. But Cuba can become the most important country to the United States because if Soviet Russia establishes a missile base in the heart of Cuba, it will become necessary for the United States to take immediate action. Cuba is 90 miles away from Miami, Fla. It could be very useful to the Soviet Universal State. It could become the center of revolutionary action throughout the American hemisphere. It is for this reason that Trujillo, the dictator of the Dominican Republic, is taking defense action against possible revolt in his own country.

But what is the United States doing? President Eisenhower is going to take a trip to Latin America. But even at that gambit we have been beaten by Mikoyan's visit to Cuba, the significance of which cannot be overestimated. Cuba is thus acknowledged as Russia-supported, and Latin American communists will accept this visit as representing Soviet support for their antagonism to the United States. This is particularly true after Mikoyan said:

"Those who talk of war know that if we can send a rocket to the moon with such precision we can send a rocket with the same precision to any point on earth."

This will not be misunderstood anywhere in Latin America. It points clearly to the United States. Sputnik continues to be the anti-American propaganda weapon. It ought not to be misunderstood in Washington, but much that has occurred in Cuba is either misunderstood in Washington or the Eisenhower policy will permit nothing to interfere with the "spirit of Camp David," not even the presence of the enemy 90 miles from Miami.

Fear Unfriendly Reception Generalissimo Trujillo of the Dominican Republic recognizes the peril of this situation, and is acting accordingly. His actions may be rough but are essential to the defense of his country from an invasion by a communist-controlled Cuba. The real danger is an uprising in Haiti, supported by Cuba. Haiti and the Dominican Republic are on the same small island and Trujillo can no more tolerate Soviet Russia's presence in Haiti (via Cuba) than

Spanish Club Sees Slides of Orient At Valentine Party

Polly Meade, who visited the Orient last summer, showed color slides at the Appleton High school Spanish club's annual valentine party Wednesday afternoon.

Jean Ashman and Carol Stroessenreuther provided valentine music. An old-fashioned Valentine box was opened, and Sandy Monteith and Sandy Laudon, program chairmen, distributed valentines.

Mrs. Violet Himebaugh is club adviser.

We could at Coney Island. As long as the United States takes a soft policy we shall be in trouble.

Washington is suddenly becoming worried that President Eisenhower might receive an unfriendly reception on his Latin American trip from communist workers and students. The assumption is that the Third International, which was never really dissolved, has issued such instructions. It is unbelievable that even the weakest Latin American government will tolerate such an indignity.

Surely the people of the United States would respond to such an insult in the only possible way, by immediate physical reprisal. Less than that would condemn us to a shameful cowardice which would destroy our standing among nations. The president is the symbol of all America. No apology can wipe away an insult to him. Possibly this is one reason why presidents have avoided leaving territorial United States in the past. Today presidents travel everywhere and now that all the arrangements for this visit have been made, there can be no turning back. But there must be no risks.

The invasion of Latin America by Soviet Russia is a direct result of the incorrect policy of the renunciation of the Monroe doctrine. As long as that doctrine prevailed as the basis of our relations with Latin America, no foreign power dared to invade a Latin American country.

Today such an invasion is conducted by other means, namely, by the mobilization of revolutionary power through communist parties in each country, pledged to carry out the program of the Kremlin. The current communist regime in Cuba is an example of what can be accomplished by such means.

New Industry Sought for State Indians

Federal Bureau Asks Firms to Locate or Expand in 7 Areas

BY FRANCES McKUSICK Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington — The bureau of Indian affairs is attempting to persuade various commercial industries to expand or locate new plants or business establishments in seven Wisconsin areas in order to employ members of Indian tribes, it was disclosed today.

"Industrial fact sheets" or brochures already have been prepared on the advantages offered commercial industry in Black River Falls, Shawano, Wausau, the Menominee reservation, the La Courte Ojibwas reservation, the Stockbridge-Munsee reservation and the Red Cliff reservation at Bayfield.

Chippewa Success This program of attempting to attract industry into areas near reservations, and of trying to get firms already established to employ Indians was explained to a house appropriations subcommittee holding hearings on money requests for the Bureau of Indian Affairs for the fiscal year commencing July 1.

The bureau, which said its industrial development program only started about two years ago, expressed satisfaction over the cooperation it has received in promoting this program with the communities themselves.

A spokesman for the bureau told the committee that it was proud of the success attained by the Lac du Flambeau band of Chippewas which set aside $40,000 for construction of a building to be leased to the Simpson Electric company with the anticipation of additional 40 employees. Presently, the bureau disclosed, Simpson Electric is employing 225 persons, of which about half are Indians.

Efforts of the bureau to assist Hill's Archery Supplies to expand its operation to the production of fiberglass boats in Mercer also was described. Of the 24 employees working for this company, nine are Indians.

Island Marker Notes Lawrence Professor

Dr. Rowe Led Reconstruction Of Hawaiian Worship Temples

A new historical marker on the far off island of Maui, Hawaii, mentions Dr. Chandler W. Rowe of the Lawrence college anthropology department.

Dr. Rowe supervised a crew of prisoners who worked on the reconstruction of two heiaus (Hawaiian temples of worship) during 1957 and 58 when he was on leave of absence from Lawrence to work in the Bishop museum of Honolulu. The work was done under an $18,000 appropriation from the 1957 Hawaiian legislature to the Maui Historical society. The Bishop museum provided continuity for the project, which was first directed by Dr. Kenneth Emory and then by Dr. Rowe.

Marker Tells Significance

The two heiau-named Halekii and Pihana Kalani—are situated on a hillside near Wailuku, and cover a total area of 150 by 300 feet.

The historical marker explains their significance: "Halekii, or house of images, was an ancient temple of worship. Its date of origin is unknown, but it is believed to have been in use during the reign of Kahakili, 1765-1794. The heiau was adorned by rows of images, symbols through which the gods could be propitiated by means of prayer and offering."

Human Sacrifice Possible

"Pihana Kalani, a sacrificial temple, was consecrated by Kahakili in about 1779. Each heiau was laid out on a terraced stone platform and contained an altar, an oracle tower, and houses for priest and king. The terraces rose to a height of 12 to 30 feet and were constructed of water-worn boulders and paved with beach pebbles."

It is possible that the sacrificial temple, Pihana Kalani, was used for human sacrifice, although this was performed

Revengeful Mail Order Scheme Brought to Halt With Arrest

Chattanooga, Tenn. — Postal inspectors have charged a 32-year-old Chattanooga with a revengeful mail order scheme in which such things as 1,500 pounds of cheese and a reducing machine were ordered in the names of other people.

Erol A. Crutcher was arraigned Tuesday on a charge of using the mails to defraud. A U.S. attorney said the harassment campaign of more than a year centered on officials of an insurance agency which had refused Crutcher a job.

Jack D. Hixson, Jr., an agent for the insurance firm, said his name was used in the order for fancy cheese. But what really shook his household was his unsought enrollment in a rock 'n' roll record club.

He said rock 'n' roll is forbidden in his house, since his wife once was a violinist for a symphony orchestra.

on only the most important occasions and at a heiau of the highest class. In 1790, King Kamehameha I is believed to have made sacrifices there before defeating Maui in an important battle.

Both temples were ordered destroyed by Kamehameha II about 1819, at the time of the overthrow of the tabu system.

A much newer building is included in the restoration work. It is the Lahaina prison, built in 1852 to fill a need caused by the presence of whaling ships in Lahaina waters. Hail was the principal base in the Pacific's whaling industry and thousands of seamen were in port twice a year. The prison housed disorderly seamen who did not return to their ships at sundown and were a nuisance to the population.

Friday Night's Games:
Appleton at North.
Oshkosh at West.
East at Fond du Lac.
Central at Manitowoc.

BY MIKE DREW
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

It's well within the realm of possibility that the Appleton High school basketball Terrors could be within one game of the Fox River Valley conference lead at 10 p. m. Friday.

Co-fourth place AHS will be favored to repeat an earlier win over Sheboygan North. Front-running Sheboygan Central is no better than an even-money bet for its contest on the rugged Manitowoc High court.

A Manitowoc victory Friday and a Green Bay West success over visiting Oshkosh would tie the Ships, Wildcats and Redmen for the lead. If visiting Appleton and Fond du Lac dispatch North and Green Bay East, respectively, as they're favored to do, they'd be a game out, with three to go.

Tough Games

Central, which has games left with troublesome Fond du Lac, West and Appleton, in addition to Manty, may not get through that schedule without a loss, or even two.

Co-runnerup West has four toughies remaining (Oshkosh, Manty, Central and Fond du Lac). Manitowoc must play

KO of Hubbard Surprises Fans Of Fancy Cuban

Miami Beach, Fla. — Luis Manuel Rodriguez, the best welterweight to come out of Cuba since "Kid" Gavilan, wants to fight Don Jordan for the title in his next ring appearance.

Rodriguez proved he is ready to the satisfaction of 3,105 ringside spectators and a nationwide television audience Wednesday night when he knocked out previously unbeaten Carl Hubbard of Philadelphia.

The end came in 1:53 of the fourth round in a scheduled 10-rounder and surprised many Rodriguez followers who looked on him as a fancy boxer but short on knockout punches.

Was Insulted

"He could handle the other guys by just slapping them around and boxing them," said Angelo Dundee, Rodriguez' manager. "But he was insulted by so many people saying he was a fancy Dan and could not punch, and he was determined to knock Hubbard out."

It was Rodriguez' twenty-seventh victory without a defeat. He had won 19 fights by decisions and only seven by knockouts before he faced the 148-pound Hubbard.

The Philadelphia had gone through 21 fights without a loss and scored 15 knockouts prior to his engagement with Rodriguez.

Continental Loop Makes Merger Offer in Houston

Houston, Tex. — Houston moved closer to major league baseball Wednesday with selection of a site for a stadium and an offer by backers of the Continental league to buy or merge with the Houston member of the American association.

One of the five founders of the Continental Baseball league, the Houston Sports association, offered to buy control of the Houston Buffs for $184,000.

But Russell Rowles, Buff board chairman, indicated the cash offer would be unsatisfactory.

He said, however, he would recommend that stockholders give study to an alternate proposal submitted by continental backers that the two groups be merged.

Central, West and Fond du Lac before closing with Sheboygan North.

The anything-can-happen possibilities were envisioned by circuit sportswriters at season's beginning. They expected the league to be well balanced at its top with an usually large field of contenders.

Terror Coach Dick Emanuel has been disappointed in his players' inability to maintain a consistent level of performance. "None of our boys can put three good games back-to-back," he complains.

Squaw Valley Slopes, Rinks Are Buzzing

Sun Shines But Another Storm Is Possibility

Squaw Valley, Calif. — "They are living again," declared Hans Urban, coach of the West German alpine team, as sunny weather returned to Squaw Valley and his skiers returned to the mountain slopes.

But fingers were crossed by officials as well as athletes hoping good weather would continue with the opening ceremony for the games just one week away.

There was a storm out in the Pacific which forecast-er Hal Root said might reach the Northern California coast Friday, bringing another possibly heavy snow to Squaw Valley.

Sun Shines
But while the sun shone, the slopes and skating rinks buzzed with activity as the international athletes skied and skated.

Two Russian women speed skaters, Klara Guseva and Lydia Skoblikova, charged there were pebbles imbedded in the speed skating rink.

Bill Kerth, director of the ice events, explained that the recent storms blew debris onto the rink. He said it must be planed down and a new surface put on. He hoped to have the new surface today.

The 60-meter ski jump was opened for the first time since the storm, but most of the jumpers waited impatiently for the 80-meter one to be ready for use.

"You don't get anything out of that one," Germany's Helmut Recknagel declared after taking the smaller jump.

Crane, who scored two knockouts on opening night, followed with a quick knockout of Ollie Torgerson, Manitowoc, in only 50 seconds of the first round in a 147-pound novice division bout.

Others from Appleton who won included Bob Eich, who battled his way to a decision in the 175-pound novice class and then lost by default in his second scheduled appearance because of a cut over his eye; Pete Glasheen, who decided-ed Tom Reed, Marshfield, in the 160-pound novice division; and Jim Reedy, who beat Arlyn Mrotek, Marshfield, on a third round TKO when Mrotek's "trick knee" buckled on him and he was unable to continue in an 147 - pound open class bout.

Crane, a stocky southpaw puncher, didn't take long sizing up Torgerson, his lean, rangy foe from Manitowoc. As in his previous bouts, Crane sneaked in with a solid overhand left that caught Torgerson flush on the chin and the Manitowoc boxer spilled to the canvas and was unable to rise.

At the count of 10, Torgerson still lay with his head under the ropes, trying to regain his feet, while Appleton rooters gave Crane a rousing ovation.

Glasheen used his reach to advantage in disposing of the bouncy Reed, and finished strong in the third round. There were toe - to - toe exchanges, with Glasheen rat-

Leaves Snow for South

Dressen Feels Braves Can Improve More Than Dodgers and Giants

Milwaukee — Charlie Dressen, the Milwaukee Braves manager, paced impatiently across the floor of his hotel room Wednesday and watched from his window the swirling snow that prevented him from taking a plane to Florida.

Dressen wasn't talking about the snow, however. His thoughts were on the 1960 baseball season and on his ball club that he thinks will win the National league pennant.

"We can do better than we did last year," he said. "That is why I say we're going to win."

Trains Diligently
"With a solid Wes Covington and a sound Johnny Logan and a better bench, we can do it."

Covington failed to live up to expectations last year and was out part of the season with an injury. The big outfielder has been training diligently, however, and Dressen expects him to come back in 1960.

Logan, after a poor 1958 season, had one of his best years in 1959 and also has been training daily for the coming year.

"I don't think the Dodgers can do it again this year," Dressen added.

"Larry Sherry and Roger Craig had great years. And everyone else on the club—Gil Hodges, especially, had good years, too. The whole club was at top speed. I don't think they can do any better this year—and we can."

"As for the Giants, it all depends on their two new pitchers. If Billy O'Dell and Billy Loes don't do better for San Francisco than they did for Baltimore last year, the Giants aren't going to do it either."

Dressen said that the Braves will have 57 players at their camp at Bradenton, Fla. He said he would have 25 pitchers on hand and would have to split them into squads.

The Braves' manager left Milwaukee by train for Chicago Wednesday night. He hoped to get a plane from that city for Florida. He plans to compete in the major league players' annual golf tournament and then meet with his coaches to plan for the influx of pitchers and catchers at the camp Feb. 24.

fling effective combinations off his opponent's chin. While the Appleton boxer admitted he had some bad moments early in the fight, he was definitely in command at the end and Reed was hanging on to survive the storm.

Body Attack
Reedy, boxing a former champion from Marshfield, was behind on the scorecards at the time that Mrotek's knee bucked in the third round. Mrotek had employed a body attack against the Appleton Golden Glover, and Reedy had been forced to cover up. Suddenly, as Mrotek shifted his stance, his right knee gave way and he collapsed and was unable to continue. The win went to Reedy on a TKO in 35 seconds of the third.

Each looked impressive in posting the first victory of the night for the Appleton delegation, a hard-fought decision over Russ Ponczoch. Stratford. Elch waded right in against Ponczoch, and both boys stood in the center of the ring several times and traded jolting blows. In the second round, Elch rocked Ponczoch and then clinched the victory with some blistering right-left combinations at close range in the third.

Jerry Felauer of Appleton did practically all the punching in the third round of his 175-pound novice bout against Marcel Linzmeier but couldn't offset points piled up by his foe in the first two rounds. The Appleton boxer, employed a "jumping jack" style, took an eight count in the second round before launching his belated rally.

There were 26 bouts on the semi-finals program, with 16 ending in decision, five by knockouts, three by technical knockouts, and two by default. The championship finals will be held at the Fond du Lac Armory E, Saturday night.

Answer to 'You Call It'
(C) — Only Neal's run counts and the score is 1-0. Snider is out for passing Moon and he is credited with a double instead of a home run. Only the number of runs necessary to win the game should be counted if a player hits a "home run" out of the park and then passes a teammate on the basepaths in the last half of the game's final inning.

Terror Quint Will Play at North Friday

campaign—has Appleton, as a team been able to turn in three straight solid performances.

With any kind of luck AHS should be in its best physical condition of the season down the stretch. The right knee of 1958-9 all-conference performer John Nussbaum is getting stronger daily. The club's floor leader is experiencing much less soreness than he did after coming back to the game within two months of an operation.

"Nussbaum is the key to the rest of our season, league games and tournament," Emanuel says frankly, "I hope he can come through."

John has averaged 13 points in the last three contests and is again making some of the moves which made him the FVC's No. 2 pointmaker last year.

Lodholz Drills
Larold Lodholz, who has missed the last three contests after having a piece of metal removed from his foot, drilled for the first time in several weeks Tuesday. Both feet were sore after practice, because of his long lay-off from Emanuel's strenuous nightly workouts, and how much help he'll be at North is questionable.

But the Terrors are glad to have him available again with his experience (two seasons as a regular) and height (6-3). Junior guard Pete Treiber cut his eye in Tuesday's drill and the injury was checked by a doctor. Chances are he'll be able to play Friday.

In Appleton's latest win, the 64-57 decision of Fond du Lac last Friday, the Terrors did away with the sloppy ball-handling and passing which has marred their play quite frequently. They still were having trouble with personal fouls, outflowing their opponent for the ninth time in 14 games.

And the field goal accuracy problem, a cause for concern especially when the Terrors faced a zone, was nonexistent against the Cardinals. Appleton shelled Fond du Lac with a fine 46 per cent from the floor.

Emanuel's defensive preparations this week are keyed at stopping North's Charley Hubregtse, the league's No. 4 scorer. Hubregtse, whom Coach Charley "Bump" Jones calls "the best shot I've ever had" at North is averaging 16.3 per league contest.

He was the only Raider to count over six points in North's 53-44 loss at Appleton earlier, canning 17. Marty Schultz and Nussbaum will probably work on him, depending on whether Emanuel goes with a 3-guard or 3-forerouter offense.

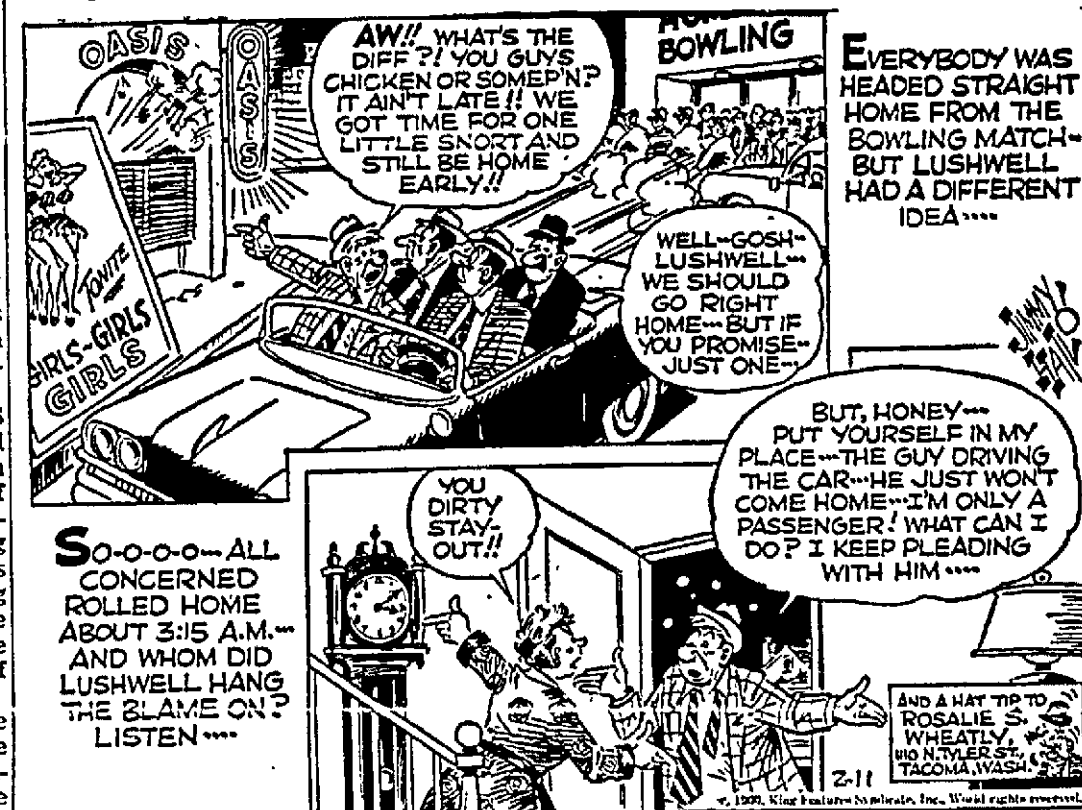

Big Upset
After Hubregtse, Coach Charley "Bump" Jones' top league pointmaker is Tom Siebert, with a 7.5 average. Wally Graumann (6-6) has a 7.3 mark after a 20-point night the last time out.

That was in North's ringing 64-58 upset on the Green Bay West home floor to knock the Wildcats out of the co-league. North trailed by 15 points at one time in the first half. The Golden Raiders' other loop victories were over Fond du Lac and Green Bay East.

Nussbaum's 14 points (10 free throw) led Appleton in the first North game.

After his 25-point outburst against Fond du Lac, AHS' Ron Abel is within 10 points

Rozelle to Change Method Of Figuring Aerial Leaders

Post-Crescent News Service

Green Bay — "Pete" Rozelle, the new commissioner of the National Football league, is planning a few changes.

And Arnie Herber, the Packer passing immortal, should like one of them. Said Pete: "It seems to me we should change our system of figuring passing leaders. The system has been under much criticism."

Herber has been a leading critic of the system for years and even devised his own plan a few seasons back. Presently, passing leaders are based on average gain per pass thrown. And most of the time the passers with the long-distance receivers were cinches to win the pitching titles.

No Health Problem
Rozelle undoubtedly will order the use of some sort of inverse grading systems and figure in interceptions, percentages of completions, etc.

With no health problem such as the late Bert Bell faced, Rozelle said he plans to be a traveling commissioner, explaining "I want to spend some time in every league city."

Bell was a 24-hour commissioner, answering telephone calls at any hour of the night. Pete says he's getting a pull-out telephone because "there's no sense answering calls at 4 a.m."

Rozelle is now working as general manager of the Rams, a position he held for three years. He figures to close his duties, including the hiring of assistants for new head coach Bob Waterfield, about March 1 and then stay in LA for the league meeting March 8.

Packer Coach Vince Lombardi will be honored as the "Wisconsin Italian of the year" at a program in Racine. The selection has been made by the Roma club of Racine.

Gene Gedman, the Lions' fine halfback who gave the Packers so many headaches three or four years ago, is finished — at the tender age of 28. He has a chronic knee injury and Lion physicians have told him to hang up the mauls. Same verdict Howie Ferguson received.

WORTH MORE BECAUSE THEY WORK MORE!

Compare this list of Chevy advances with the features ordinary trucks are still talking about. You'll see why Chevy trucks get more work done in a day... why they go extra thousands of miles before trade-in time. These Sturdi-Bilt Sixties aren't just new, they're a full scale revolution!

With independent front suspension there's a brand-new, smoother, easier handling feel behind the wheel.

TORSION-SPRING RIDE

Each front wheel, suspended independently of the other, is free to step individually over bumps. And shockproof torsion springs up front soak up the jars and jolts before they reach the body. With three rugged new tailored-to-the-truck rear suspensions to further reduce road shocks, Chevy gives you the smoothest truck ride you've ever felt.

NO SHIMMY, NO WHEEL FIGHT

in the league. Grinnell, which is one game ahead of Lawrence plays two road home games this weekend. St. Olaf, only 11 games up on the Vikings, plays a pair on the road.

Same Lineup
Boya, pleased with the way his charges worked their patterns against Beloit, plans to start the same lineup against Monmouth. That would be Jim Rasmussen, Loren Wolf and John Van Meter in the front line and Jim Schuize and Joe Lamers in the backcourt.

Wolf, whose second-semester addition to the squad was anticipated with the kind of feeling Wisconsin's Badgers had about Frank Burks, has already proved a big help. Wolf's 20 points was the top figure in the Buc game — on only his second as a Vike.

Boya figures to start with a combination zone defense Friday, the kind that the Vikings used last year at Monmouth in playing the Scots to the final horn before losing, 68-67. Monmouth, with a starting lineup that averages 6-foot-3, has one of the biggest, most rugged crews in the MC.

But, Boya feels that if his team can improve its rebounding over the first Monmouth game, it has a good chance to win. Lawrence has its biggest starting array in 5-3 Schuize 6-3 or better.

17 For Reasner
The 6-5 Clair McRoberts and the 6-4 Ken Mueller have been the Scots' big guns, with MC averages of 19.6 and 14 points, respectively. In the first Lawrence game, McRoberts' 16-point total was second to the 17 of 6-3 John Reasner.

Boya has also mapped preliminary strategy for Knox.

The Vike coach figures it might take a slow-down game to beat the run-and - shoot Siwashers, the conference's most poised team.

The only teams to beat Knox in the first 15 games were Beloit (68-57 at Knox) and Chicago (63-55 at Chicago). Both these teams played a deliberate game against the Siwashers.

Teams that try to run with the speedy, balanced Knox quint usually are lost in the shuffle. The Siwashers are averaging around 81 points a game—a pace better than the 78.4 that brought them a 20-3 season last year.

Eyes Third Title
Knox is shooting for its third straight title. It shared the honors in 1957-8 with Carlton and Coc but took undisputed honors with a 15-1 record last season.

Knox' Bill Granning, who set a school record of 454 points last season, is fourth in the conference currently with a 20.7 average. Knox' Danny Littell and Denny Geraghty are also in the top 15 of the MC with rates of better than 13. Geraghty got 20 against Lawrence earlier this season. "Chuck" Knocke, who will be out of the starting lineup for a third straight game, continues to lead Vike scoring—with a 15.0 conference average. Rasmussen is next with 13.3.

Knocke was benched originally as a disciplinary measure (missing two straight practices as the team prepared for second - semester play), but the new lineup clicked so well Saturday, Boya is reluctant to break it up. Knocke, however, is due for action Friday, the time of his entrance depending upon how well Lawrence's early patterns work against the Scots.

Fox Cities Ice Divers Devise Recovery Rope As Safety Measure

Winter Activity Requires Utmost In Precautions

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

You are an "ice diver," a wintertime SCUBA diver.

You are swimming around the bottom of a lake, under the ice.

Suddenly, the safety rope which is tied to your wrist breaks. You are on your own in efforts to find the small hole through which you descended to the lake's bottom.

Sounds like something out of a science fiction horror tale?

It's not. Such a frightening incident has happened and will continue to happen to wintertime divers.

However, a safety device developed by a group of Fox Cities men has made the possible results of safety group rope breakage much less frightening for the growing group of ice divers.

Recovery Rope

The device is a 200-foot recovery rope to which yellow aluminum floats have been attached. This is how it's used.

When the "ice diver" above the hole in the ice, holding the other end of the safety rope, discovers that his companion isn't on the end he grabs one end of the recovery rope and gives the other to a third person and goes through the hole himself.

The rescuer then swims as quickly as he can away from the hole until the 200-foot line is taut. He then swims in a huge circle within the 200-foot radius.

The first "ice diver" has been instructed to jettison his weights and float to the surface in case of safety rope breakage and maintain a stable position as much as possible. When the recovery rope passes him he grabs it and pulls himself, hand over hand, back to the hole.

Not as Popular

Ice diving, as can be expected, has nowhere near the popularity of summer diving. However, a group of four Fox Cities friends, who dive together frequently in the summer, also does some diving through the ice and devised the recovery rope. The group includes: Bill Rohlf and Dick Boyd, Kaukauna, and Harold Engerson, Jr., and Frank Pierri, Appleton.

Several of these men were in a group which searched, through the ice, for the body of a New London boy believed to have drowned in the Wolf river several months ago. The body hasn't been found and another diver drowned, under the ice, while looking for the youth.

The four do most of their summertime diving in the Sister bay area, Green Bay, investigating scows of sunken ships.

To keep them warm while ice diving the men wear a "wet suit" of neoprene foam rubber under their outer suit of latex rubber. The neoprene foam rubber is a much better insulator than wool underwear.

"You have to keep your head when you're under the ice," he observes. "The lake looks awfully big and that hole awfully small from the bottom."

Badger Five Is Weak in Rebounding

By The Associated Press

One of the big factors in Wisconsin's all-losing Big Ten basketball season to date has been a glaring weakness in rebounding.

The Badgers have snared only 256 of the boards in losing their seven league games to date.

Although they have hit on 40.4 per cent of their field goal attempts and piled up 507 points, Wisconsin has surrendered 627 points to Big Ten Rivals.

A couple of high scoring efforts in losing causes against Indiana and Ohio State enabled the Badgers to place five players among the conference's top 40 scorers.

Bob Barneson is fifteenth with 103 points and a 14.7 average; Tom Hughbanks twenty-first with 91 and 13.0, and Marty Gharriy twenty-fifth with 80 and 11.4. Fred Clow is thirty-seventh with 62 and an 8.8 average, while Jack Ullwelling is fortieth with 60 points and an 8.6 per game mark.

Added Experience Makes Senators A Team to Fear, Says 'Cookie'

BY "COOKIE" LAVAGETTO
Manager, Washington Senators

Orinda, Calif. — (AP) — A year ago at this time, the Washington Senators weren't considered a threat in our league.

However, the power we developed, plus some of the better pitching performances we got, made the other teams sit up and take notice.

In 1960, I believe, they're going to fear us as well as notice us.

For one thing, we have more experience. Last spring, we had only three regulars, who could boast having played 100 games in a big league.

Fourteenth in a Series season, Roy Sievers, Jim Lemon and Clint Courtney. In 1960, we can add Harmon Killebrew and Bob Allison to the list.

For another, we have a bunch of kids coming along who are going to push some of the veterans.

I don't want to jump to conclusions as to who will start at what positions. Some of our kids might read this and see they had been eliminated before we start.

I do know that fellows like Sievers, Killebrew, Allison and Lemon are going to be in there. They showed they could bust the ball in '59. I want to get a good look at Dan Dobek, up from Chattanooga where he hit 23 home runs. They say he can play center. If he can, we'll move Allison to right.

Another fellow we are not underestimating in the center field race is Lenny Green, who is fast and can hit on occasion. Faye Throneberry also will be in the running there.

Second and short were big trouble spots for us in '59. We opened with Ron Samford at short and Reno Bertoia at second. Ron developed a sore arm, since cured. Bertoia showed good power and speed in the spring but he tapered off. Both will be in the running for second along with Billy Conso and Ken Aspromonte.

"Zorro" Versalles, a 19-year-old, has the first call at shortstop. He is an exceptionally fine glove man. Backing up Sievers at first base, we have Julio Becquer, a flashy glove man and a valuable pinch hitter.

We have three catchers, Courtney, Hal Naragon and Steve Korschick.

We should have better pitching. Camilo Pascual, our 17-game winner, and Pedro Ramos definitely will be starters.

I'm anxious to look at Fred Bruckbauer, a bonus kid we signed out of the University of Minnesota last June. He won 12 games in barely half a season in the Three-I league.

Don Lee, a big right-hander we drafted from the Milwaukee organization, will have a shot at a starter's job. We have three fine prospects in Jim Kaat, Ralph Lument, and Jack Kralick. We also have such veterans as Russ Kemmerer, Truman Clevenger, Bill Fischer, Chuck Stobbs, Hal Woodeshick and Hal Griggs.

We're hoping that Dick Hyde, a bullpen ace in '58, will regain his old form.

Fellow Ice-Divers, Bill Rohlf, center, and Dick Boyd, right, prepare Harold Engerson, Jr., for a trip below the ice. Rohlf applies vaseline to the exposed area around Engerson's mouth to protect the mouth from the cold water. Boyd ties a safety knot around Engerson's wrist with the end of a 100-foot life line. The rope can be used for signalling purposes.

Dick Boyd Blows Water Out of the hose and the regulator of his air tank after diving through the ice. If he doesn't do this, water could freeze in the mechanism and keep him from getting air during his next diving trip.

Bill Rohlf Holds a Recovery rope which has been devised by a group of Fox Cities skin divers for use while diving through the ice. Tied to the 200-foot line are yellow aluminum floats, taken from fishing nets.

Quick Cinnamon Buns—a real treat—make Sunday breakfast or brunch a memorable meal. The sticky buns are rich with cinnamon and raisins.

Stuffed Eggs

For half a dozen hard-boiled eggs to be stuffed, mash the yolks with a quarter cup of mayonnaise-type salad dressing, half a teaspoon of dry mustard and salt and pepper to taste. The sharp tines of a kitchen fork will "flute" the stuffing after it has been piled back into the egg-white cavities.

Hot Cinnamon Buns Make Breakfasts Memorable

BY EDITH M. BARBER

Sticky cinnamon buns are always associated in my mind with Philadelphia. There I learned that they were a specialty, when I was taken to this big city as a child. I enjoyed them even more than the oyster stew Uncle Charles always served us for Sunday breakfast. I found this was unexpected criticism or comparison—exedly good, but saved most of my appetite for the cinnamon buns, the scent of which was permeating the house as we came down the stairs for breakfast. Even I was glad to use a fork when I started to use my fingers I found them tingling from the hot, sugary syrup. Real Philadelphia buns have a yeast dough foundation, but a biscuit mix can be used to advantage if you want to save time. If they are rich with raisins, there will be no

Gourmet Dishes

Leftovers a Challenge To Wide-Awake Cooks

Leftovers can be your biggest help, or your biggest headache, depending on what you do with them.

If they're served in the same fashion as the first time around nothing could be more dreary. If they're viewed as a bonanza and a brand-new ingredient, they can make a dish that's delicious, fresh and glamorous enough for your most cherished guest list.

Take turkey, chicken or shrimp for instance. Add mushrooms and a fine, discreet sherry sauce, plus the discard of individual noodle nests, and you can transform a little leftover into a lot of gourmet dining.

Sherryed Turkey In Noodle Nests

1 tablespoon salt
3 quarts boiling water
8 ounces fine egg noodles
1 cup butter
2 cups sliced mushrooms
1 cup chopped parsley
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 cups chicken bouillon or stock
1/2 cup sherry
3 cups diced cooked turkey
Add one tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add noodles so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Press noodles into six buttered individual ring molds. Meanwhile, melt butter. Add mushrooms and parsley and cook over low heat until mushrooms are tender. Add flour, paprika, one teaspoon salt and pepper; blend. Gradually add bouillon or stock and sherry and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened. Add turkey and heat to serving temperature, stirring frequently. Serve sherryed turkey with noodle nests. Garnish with parsley, if desired.

Creamed Chicken Ring
1 tablespoon salt
3 quarts boiling water
8 ounces medium egg noodles
3 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup chopped mushrooms
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 1/2 teaspoons curry powder
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1/2 cup milk
2 cups diced cooked chicken
Salt and pepper to taste
Cook noodles as above. Combine with eggs, mushrooms, one and one-half teaspoons salt and curry powder; mix well. Press into greased 8-inch ring mold. Bake in 350-degree oven 40 minutes. Unmold.

Meanwhile, combine remaining ingredients; mix well. Cover and cook over low heat 10 minutes, stirring frequently. Serve curry-noodle ring filled with chicken mixture. Garnish as desired.

Peanuts Basis Of These Two Cookie Types

We consider peanuts as nuts, although they do not grow on trees and are botanically known as goobers or ground nuts.

Almost always peanuts are roasted before they are sold, and this is fortunate as in raw form they are not particularly palatable. Nowadays, we buy salted peanuts to serve as an accessory to a meal or a cocktail party and sometimes we use them as an ingredient just as we would other nuts, in cookies or in a canape mixture, or with a fruit salad.

In butter form, the peanut has found its real place, as it furnishes a staple that is used in almost every household—always where there are children—as a sandwich filling.

Peanut Sugar Snaps
1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup peanut butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
Two-thirds cup chopped salted peanuts
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 1/2 cups sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt

Cream shortening and peanut butter. Add sugar gradually. Beat in eggs. Add peanuts and vanilla extract. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Stir into first mixture. Shape in 1-inch balls and place on greased cookie sheet. Press flat. Bake in 375-degree oven 10 to 12 minutes.

Peanut Balls
1 cup butter
1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups finely chopped peanuts
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 cups sifted flour
Cream butter. Stir in sugar and salt. Add peanuts and vanilla extract, and blend well. Fold in the flour, and when smooth, drop by rounded teaspoonfuls on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in 325-degree oven about 15 minutes. Remove at once from sheets and roll in confectioners' sugar. Yield: About four dozen.

Whip It Up

Small wire whips are inexpensive and indispensable in making many sauces; use it also when you are whipping up an envelope of instant potato granules. Interestingly enough, a whip will make the potatoes whiter than will a spoon because with it a goodly amount of air is incorporated.

Idea for Chops

Ever bake pork chops with tomato juice seasoned with rosemary?

A Little Leftover Turkey or chicken can make a dull dish or a gay one, depending on the company it keeps. With a sassy sauce and individual noodle nests, this dish is glamorous enough to inspire a party.

Setback for Claimants Of Estate

Dallas — A Wisconsin woman and several other persons contesting the will of an eccentric Texas man have suffered a legal setback in their prolonged court fight for a share of the estate.

An appeal to the Texas Supreme court appeared in the fifth court of appeals ruled against the contestants who claim to be distant heirs of the late Charles Thomas Tatum. One is Mrs. Sallie South-er, 84, of Madison, Wis.

Offers 1952 Will

The appeals court reversed a lower court ruling that the estate should go to the natural heirs, "whoever they are and wherever they are." The opinion in effect upheld a 1945 will under which the Buck-ler 1945 will also was invalid

Adenauer Stresses 4-Power Occupation

Bonn — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said Wednesday and they therefore were entitled to the entire estate. The appeals court ruled against the claim.

Tatum, a Farmersville resident who died in 1952, left a sizable estate. Some estimates value it at 10 million dollars, but others set it un-der 2 million.

Thursday, Feb. 11, 1960 Appleton Post-Crescent C10

Berlin must remain under 4-power occupation until Ger-man unity is achieved. He spoke before the lower house of parliament, which ap-plauded wildly.

"The present legal status of Berlin must not be disturbed so long as the entire German question has not been solv-ed," Adenauer said in a for-eign policy debate. "Anything else damages Berlin and we cannot take responsibility for anything of that sort."

By their applause and sup-porting statements, West Ger-man lawmakers showed solid backing for this summation of the position Bonn is taking in western deliberations for the May 16 summit meeting. There was no formal vote.

PSC Adds Its Petition to Return Trains

Madison — The Public Service commission has petitioned the Interstate Commerce commission to reconsider its decision authorizing the Milwaukee Road to drop trains operating between Milwaukee and Channing, Mich.

The commission announced today it has submitted the petition for restoration of passenger trains Nos. 14 and 21, dropped from service Feb. 1.

The petition joins similar petitions from the Green Bay Labor council and locals of railroad workers unions submitted earlier in protest to discontinuance of the trains.

The trains served Wisconsin intermediate points of Plymouth, Kiel, Elkhart Lake, New Holstein, Pembine, Wausauke, Crivitz, Chilton, De Pere, Green Bay and Coleman. They also served Iron Mountain, Mich.

Discontinuance of the trains was ordered in an ICC split decision. The federal agency held their operation was not required by public convenience and necessity and, if continued, would prove an undue financial burden on the railroad.

Most Heart Cases Helped By Treatment, Says Dr. Molner

By Joseph G. Molner, M. D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: When you discussed heart murmurs, the most spectacular corrective measure is, of course, heart surgery. Thousands of these operations are being done every year now, although a decade ago they were very rare.

But for every case of heart surgery, there are hundreds of patients who benefit by other treatments. Low salt diets are one of the simpler, but very effective, methods.

If the murmur (or the condition which caused the murmur!) reduces circulation, and fluid begins to accumulate in the body, causing swelling of legs, ankles, or other members, the low-salt diet helps reduce the fluid, and turn takes that much strain off the heart.

Various heart drugs are very useful. And (this is more important than many people realize) you can reduce strain on the heart by treating and alleviating many types of chronic diseases which have no direct connection with the heart. Putting an end, or at least close tight. The pressure, to a focal infection in the teeth, tonsils or other area can force a little of the blood work the heart has to do. Stimulants taken when needed can help one over the peak in rods of pain if (as is some of the wall between two chambers. The same thing results Blood eddies back and forth, instead of traveling only in the proper sequence of chambers.

The results of these eddies are the sounds we call murmur. Technically, there can be many different types of prob- lems. Others, but they all come from the same thing: ed- less to try to discuss them all dies, gurgles or the like as the blood flows along through the heart.

I think I am warranted in saying that something can be done in most cases—and for that reason I'm very glad that you have decided to stop pre- tending that all is well.

Treatment Varies

When I say that something can be done in most cases, I don't mean that you can al- ways stop the murmur—but it how, write to me in care of isn't the murmur that you this newspaper, requesting

New Camera Tube Puts Light on Dark Corners

ABC-TV to Use Electronics Gain at July National Political Conventions

A supersensitive camera tube that will permit expansion of national political convention coverage in July has been developed by ABC-TV.

The new tube can transmit quality pictures under minimum lighting conditions. This means the network's camera will be able to nose into caucus rooms, corridors, offices and other places formerly too dim for transmission.

Network people claim the tube enables a camera to literally transmit by the light of a flashlight.

Wagnerian Applause for Classic Opera

BY W. G. ROGERS
AP Arts Editor

New York —Wagner's "Die Walkure," absent from the Metropolitan Opera for two seasons, returned this week, and the audience, as if it had been dying for just this fare, let loose Wagnerian roars of applause.

The operatic classic provided Birgit Nilsson with her second role on this stage, and her extraordinary reputation undoubtedly served to sell the house out some days ago.

But she appeared in a cast which it was hard even for the distinguished Nilsson to outshine or outsing, and she shared the enthusiastic public's approval with half a dozen most deserving colleagues.

Rousing First Act

With Jon Vickers as Siegmund, Aase Nordmo Loeberg as Sieglinde and Deszo Ernster as Hunding, the first act was enough to get the audience hoarse with cheers. The set lacked style, the costumes were cumbersome, but you forgot this in the impassioned performance of the ill-starred lovers and the orchestral music under the fine leadership of Karl Boehm.

The part of Bruennhilde does not give Miss Nilsson quite the opportunities which she had, and of which she took superb advantage, in the first role in which she was heard here, as Isolde. But her clear, penetrating soprano was the one you remembered despite slightly harder higher passages, and it was the sound you came for.

Jerome Hines as Wotan and Irene Dalis as Fricka rounded out the memorable company.

Benois, Famous Painter, Dies

Paris —Alexandre Benois, painter and art critic, died Tuesday at his home here. He was 90.

Benois was born in Leninograd, his French ancestors having migrated to Russia in the 17th century. Through an art magazine "The World and Art" he helped to spread the word of modern art in Russia in the early part of the 20th century.

Benois came west with Sergei Diaghilev and his Russian ballet and was part of that collection of dancers, musicians and artists who had such a revolutionary effect

'Mark Twain Tonight' Recording by Holbrook

Talented Actor's Recreation of Author Patterned on Stage Show

BY HUGH MULLIGAN

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Anyone who say Hal Holbrook's extraordinary Mark Twain show on Broadway last season could reasonably wonder how the same effects could be reproduced on a record album.

Holbrook, a talented actor still in his early 30s, recreated the 71-year-old Twain as a platform lecturer right down to the faintly palsied hand, the white planter's suit, the gently waving cigar that lent dramatic emphasis to the points in his witty, meandering monologue.

It was more than just a dramatic reading. Holbrook's virtuoso performance, bolstered by makeup that took two hours each night to don, lumbia's "Mark Twain Tonight" will have to depend on their ears for an appreciation of Holbrook's achievement, but they will not be disappointed. Even without the mastery stage mannerisms, the make-up and the authentic costume, Mark Twain emerges vividly from Holbrook's 1-man cast album.

Selections include Twain's remarks on smoking, his famous encounter with an interviewer, Huckleberry Finn's battle with his conscience and advice on "How to be Seventy," a subject that both Twain and Holbrook know from experience.

To get into the mood of his character and heighten the effects, Holbrook got into costume and makeup for the recording session and played to a live audience in the studio. Those who prefer to find the gave audiences the impression that they were actually watching America's greatest humorist in the flesh.

A little lady who saw Mark Twain receive an honorary degree at Oxford more than a half century ago came backstage one night and told Holbrook: "That's just the way he looked and talked. I couldn't believe my eyes and ears. You were Mark Twain and I'll never forget either of you."

State Poison Spray Laws Incomplete, Committee Finds

Speaker Says Department Lacks Enough Power to Enforce Control

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Laws governing use of economic poison sprays and dusts are incomplete and their enforcement is indifferent.

That was the principal discovery Wednesday of a legislative committee which has launched an investigation of potential hazards to human health and damage to wildlife of the steadily increasing application of chemical weed and bug killers and the use of poisons for the control of plant and tree diseases.

The interim legislative committee is working under the mandate of the legislature as a whole. Another investigation will concentrate upon the use of chemical poisons in agriculture.

Lawrence Motl, a conservation department officer, said a state committee which has been handed the job of controlling the use of insecticides doesn't have adequate powers for its task.

Control Use
The group has authority to control the use of insect sprays only in forest and non-crop areas, he complained, when actually dangers to public health and to wildlife extend into many other localities.

Motl also said present laws govern only the application of insecticides when used for insect control.

But some chemical poisons used for bug control are also used as weed killers, he explained, and in the latter instance the state group doesn't have jurisdiction. Thus a spray intended to get rid of weeds along a roadway may actually be harmful to birds and game, and trout in nearby streams, according to his testimony.

Motl said the state should sponsor research into the problems posed by all chemical poisons and extend the public controls—including the permit and operate under close state supervision.

Motl and other state officers also complained that although the legislature has given them responsibilities for the supervision of the use of economic poisons, the legislature has not put up any money for the work. Such orders as his group has issued, he hinted, may or may not be enforced. The committee of state department of health, conservation and agricultural representatives does not have a staff directly accountable to it, he reported.

State College of Agriculture technicians were cool toward the idea of legal controls of chemical sprays in agriculture and in tree disease work.

Specialists conceded that there are some wildlife losses resulting from sprays for Dutch elm disease and against orchard insects, but they said in effect that such losses are a necessary price for the protection of trees and the assurance of fruit crops.

Prof. Joseph Hickey of the college said there is evidence of the killing of song birds, and especially robins, through the use of DDT in elm tree disease work, but indicated that the losses are inevitable.

It may be possible to develop chemicals that are effective against Dutch elm disease, he said, but they have not yet been invented "in spite of some promising leads."

Fan Dancer Speaks On Adult Education

St. Louis — Miss S. Rand spoke to the Downtown Kiwanis club recently on the subject of "Adult Education." Long an advocate of adult education, Miss Rand is also a recognized expert on the terpsichorean usage of the plumes of an ostrich. In other words, fan dancing.

Her first name is Sally.

Ka Yeu Chang

Peabody Manor

Chinese Draftsman Works on Blueprints

Neenah — Probably one of the most interested workers Red Chinese took over the city for Peabody Manor, Appleton, Wis. We had to leave our property and all our possessions.

Peabody Manor is his current project. He has been in Neenah for two months. Sponsored by his uncle, a geography professor at Stevens Point State college, he came from Hong Kong eight months ago, following his graduation in civil engineering.

"My father was a lawyer in Hong Kong, and I would guess that perhaps 5,000 doctors, nurses and engineers come to this country from there every year.

"It is impossible to tell you what conditions in Hong Kong are today. There are so many refugees who have no place to go and not enough to eat. The schools are so crowded the streets are full of children, whose families live in the hills. They come to the city each day to buy a little food, which they sell to others at a little profit on the street. That way, each evening, they can buy a little food for themselves.

"They are not concerned with politics," he added wryly, "if they can keep away from the police for one day for selling without a license, and can eat and find shelter somewhere, they have had a good day."

Chang lives at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Kresse, 129 E. North Water street. "I am very lucky," he says, "They treat me like family, and I can use their kitchen and living room as though it is my own home. It is two blocks from the office. I can get there in two minutes if I walk, and 20 seconds if I run," he laughed.

Prepares Food
Chang does his own cooking and prefers Chinese food. He has rice for dinner every night, with beef or chicken, and looked horrified at the suggestion of using instant rice.

"I like Neenah so very much. I have almost forgotten my home. When one is interested in one's work and everyone is so friendly one is never lonely. Mr. Shattuck introduced me to Miss McLay at the YWCA. They have both been very kind. I have gone to young people's parties at First Methodist church. Everyone tries to be as helpful as they can.

"My only trouble is my language. I began studying English in fourth grade, but I was always afraid to recite because my pronunciation was so funny all the children would laugh. Now, too, there is technical language to learn and one must learn to think in English as well."

Meetings Set On 2 County 4-H Projects

Pleasure Horse, Conservation Work Will be Outlined

Oshkosh — Two county-wide meetings in 4-H projects have been scheduled for this month. Clarence Westfahl, county 4-H director, reported today.

A pleasure horse project meeting is planned for 8 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 17, at the courthouse lounge room. Enrollment in this project has been climbing constantly in the county and an effort is being made to include more program opportunities in 4-H club work for this project.

Representatives of 4-H clubs, the Flying Horse club, the Fox Valley Horsemen's association and others will be at the meeting.

Don Neindorf, area extension soil erosion control agent, will be guest speaker at the first county meeting of members and leaders in the first year conservation project meeting set for 8 p.m. Monday evening, Feb. 22, at the county extension office.

Four-H members interested in various phases of conservation are encouraged to sign up for the first year general conservation project called "Nature Conservation" and later specialize in forestry, soil conservation or wildlife management.

The 4-H leaders group is sponsoring its next county-wide roller skating party at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 18, at the Westward Ho on Highway 110 northwest of Oshkosh.

engineering examinations in Hong Kong, but before he can call himself an architect and a civil engineer he must take state examinations in Wisconsin. That day, and the day he can apply for citizenship, five years from now, are two goals he anticipates eagerly.

Red Magazine Turns Up on Idaho Newstands

Boise, Idaho — A Russian magazine turned up on the news stands in town all of a sudden and not everybody knew exactly what to think about it for awhile.

The manager of one hotel, Basil Mialluis, took them off the stands in his lobby at first.

"We didn't order the magazines," he said, "and we didn't want to get ourselves into a controversy."

Mialluis said, "I didn't want to wave a red flag, and if I was going to wave any, it was going to be ours."

But after thinking it over he had them put back on the stand, as did others elsewhere in town.

The magazine was USSR, the one distributed in the United States by Russia under an agreement where the U.S., in return, distributes its own magazine, Amerika, in the Soviet Union.

And the USSR was sent to Boise Wednesday on the eve of a visit to southwestern Idaho by a group of Russian officials on tour of America.

The manager of a distributing agency, Edward Endicott, said 250 copies of USSR were sent to him with a note that they could be distributed prior to the visit of the Russians.

Larsen Man, Son Hurt in Accident

Oshkosh — Harold E. Jeske, 48, route 1, Larsen, and his son, Victor, 15, received slight injuries to their backs and necks when their truck went out of control on Highway 110 in the town of Winchester at 5:19 p.m. Tuesday and flipped over.

Jeske told Winnebago county police the truck started to sway as he came over the Winchester hill. He applied his brakes and tried to straighten out the truck but hit the curbing on both sides before overturning.

ENTIRE STOCK 1959 MODELS
TAKE 2 YEARS TO PAY

This is a model of the St. Gabriel Catholic parish building, scheduled for start of construction at Geiger and Western streets in Neenah in March. A novel type of reinforced concrete arches will form the roof.

St. Gabriel Sets March Building

Neenah Church, School Will Have Concrete Roof

Neenah — Construction of the new St. Gabriel's Catholic church and school in Neenah will begin about the middle of March, according to the Rev. Lawrence Stingle, pastor. The church is expected to be completed in December and the school in the summer of 1961.

The construction site is an 11.28 acre plot on the southwest corner of Western and Geiger streets on the western edge of Neenah, just off Highway 41.

The building will consist of three wings — a church and parish hall wing parallel to Geiger street and two wings containing eight classrooms each.

Different Look
The church wing will be 285 by 99 feet. The nave will seat 900 and the mothers' room and choir another 80. Because the parish hall will be adjacent to the church, overflow crowds at church services can be accommodated in the hall, which will have a capacity of 400 persons. A public address system will broadcast from the nave to the parish hall.

A concrete corrugated roof will give the 1-story buildings a different look. The roof will be constructed of arches of 4 to 6-inch reinforced concrete slabs poured in place over standard framework.

Architect George Narovec, Appleton, said this type of construction is new in this part of the state but already has been used for considerable savings in the Milwaukee area and other parts of the country. The economy is derived from the fact that the framework can be re-used and the roof can be built over the building before any other work is pursued. This enables builders to work on interior walls and finishes during inclement weather.

Fireproof Construction
The exterior will be of concrete, brick and stone, with aluminum sashes. The building will be completely fireproof.

Classroom wings will contain a library, toilets, administration area and auxiliary spaces, as well as the classrooms. These wings will measure 180 by 72 feet.

The St. Gabriel's parish was established in June, 1959. It is a subdivision of St. Margaret Mary, the only other Catholic parish in Neenah.

Labor Council Asks for More School Money
Menasha — The Neenah-Menasha Labor council has asked the common council why school activities must be curtailed. Pres. Rufin Skibba said today.

A letter to the council was authorized at Tuesday's meeting.

Skibba said the delegates "most certainly feel the city is healthy and wealthy enough to provide programs for children. They should be allowed to participate in co-curricular activities."

"There is no reason why the city should have spent thousands and thousands of dollars on a gym and equipment and now the council will not allocate the money to carry out that type program," Skibba continued.

The board of education Monday voted to drop use of the swimming pool, summer school and all co-curricular activities including athletics, citing a $7,900 deficit in the budget as limited by the council.

Skibba said the delegates from Menasha feel people of this city "will walk around with their heads hung in shame if Menasha cannot take part in football and basketball and have summer school."

Defer Hearing In Knifing of Auto Salesman
Oshkosh — Preliminary examination for William H. Breitenfeldt, 34, of 1107 E. Marquette street, Appleton, charged with assault and battery, was postponed a week today because of the illness of Municipal Judge S. J. Luchinsinger.

Breitenfeldt was charged after he stabbed Peter Heimerman, 38, of 349 Cleveland street, Menasha, an auto salesman, twice with a house-hold paring knife early last Friday morning at George's Steak house, S. Memorial drive, Appleton.

Heimerman has been released from St. Elizabeth hospital where he was taken after the stabbing. Breitenfeldt has been released on $10,000 bond.

The church portion probably will be completed by December of this year, with the school portion scheduled for completion in the summer of 1961.

Neenah Board Sets Date for Opening Junior High Bids

March 8 Chosen for Receiving Costs, Band Uniform Contract Awarded

Neenah — March 8 was set as the date for the opening of bids for the new junior high school at Wednesday afternoon's meeting of the board of education.

The board will have a month after the opening of bids in which to review the qualifications of the bidders and decide on the various alternates to secure the bid and construction most advantageous to the city.

Advertisements for bids will be run Feb. 16 and Feb. 23, the board decided.

The bid of the Ostwald company for the new band uniforms was accepted by the board. Four bids were received with the Ostwald bid $71.44 per uniform.

90 to 95 Uniforms
The board authorized the purchase of from 90 to 95 uniforms, depending on the number school officials felt were needed. The total cost is below the $7,500 set up in the budget.

The style selected by the school board is similar to that used by the University of Wisconsin bands and is designed for use in both parade and concert. The uniform will be of midnight blue trimmed with the school colors of red and white.

A red and white overlay extending to the belt in front and to the tail of the coat in back will give the uniform a military style appearance for parade use. The overlay can be removed and the uniform coat will have the regular V-type neck style for concert play.

Pershing Style Cap
Instead of the West Point type hat, a Pershing style cap with a 6-inch ostrich plume will be used. Delivery is promised within seven weeks.

The style was chosen by band and school officials and a committee of parents.

The board also approved the payments of bills totaling $93,026.

Guides to Aging Successfully, Talk For Homemakers

Neenah — What kind of person will you be at 65 or 70? Will you be cheerful, pleasant and easy to be with or a difficult to get along with person?

Answer these questions by observing what kind of a person you are today, a Neenah psychiatrist told Neenah Homemakers club Wednesday afternoon at the YWCA. "What we are in our thirties and forties is what we will be in our sixties and seventies, only more so," Aging successfully, means to me, living successfully," said Dr. Elizabeth Henning.

Living successfully at any age means trying to achieve as much maturity as we can to cope with our emotions, she stated.

"Getting out of bed in the morning" is one of the examples of struggles we have with our emotional maturity, she illustrated. Unless there is something spectacular expected during the day, most of us think, "oh, if only I could remain a little longer."

Emotional Maturity "Emotional maturity is a condition that is probably never reached in its entirety. We may be mature in one respect, immature in others," explained Dr. Henning. "Some people are mature in their parenthood role, yet immature in Dependence The drive to move forward from dependence to independence can be traced to inherited instincts and environmental culture, she reported. "The fledgling birds are pushed out of the nest, when they are ready to fly," she said. The immature adult longs for dependence and may develop a parasitic leech-like attachment to someone else or may put on the face of extreme aggressiveness and independence, she said.

Dr. Henning pointed out the independent adult has learned the satisfactory results of being independent far outweigh dependency.

Leaders for the new 4-H project on child care will meet at 8 p.m. Feb. 24 at Winneconne Central school for a training session.

The meeting will include an explanation of project literature, record sheets and the development of a child's growth and behavior.

Another sign of maturity is "the balance between getting and giving." The mature adult enjoys both giving and getting. Most of us have seen the person who can't receive a gift or favor without a compulsion that he must return an exact duplicate, she said.

A set of internal standards which allows the mature individual to judge his acts in the their social relationships with other people," she said. "It's easy for any of us to behave in an adult manner when all goes well." Trouble may make us regress to a lower level of maturity, said the psychiatrist.

"Psychological maturity may be quite unrelated to intellectual maturity." A person may be a genius, yet can't get along with others, she illustrated.

A mature individual is one who has achieved emotional independence and self reliance, she defined. There is a conflict between our desires to be dependent versus independence, she said. If the conflict is severe, adjustment problems may result with other people, marriage relationships and jobs. Illustrating the conflict, Dr. Henning quoted one psychiatrist who said, "Half of the people are sick because they are not married and the other half sick, because they are married."

Leaders Face Stiff Tests In Little Nine

Reedsville Faces Wolves, Shiocton Meets Freedom

Co-leaders Shiocton and Reedsville will face stiff tests in the second - last round of action for the Little Nine conference Friday night.

Shiocton will entertain fourth-ranked Freedom while Reedsville will face the invader of fifth-place Winneconne.

Other Tilts
Other league tilts will have Omro at Wrightstown. Bear Creek at Hilbert and Hortonville at Denmark.

After Friday, only one set of games will be left on the schedule. Reedsville and Shiocton, both with 10-1 marks, have been deadlocked for the lead since Dec. 17. They will not face each other in the remaining games and consequently each must protect its record to earn a share of the title.

Freedom (8-3) saw the glimmer go out of its title hopes last week when the Irish dropped a tilt to Reedsville.

Winneconne has won two of its last three games and could give Reedsville a battle all the way. However, Reedsville will have the home floor advantage.

Hortonville, only a game behind the co-leaders with a 9-2 record, will try to keep its title hopes alive at the expense of the Danes who have a 2-9 slate. The Polar Bears have won four straight against league foes.

Omro, which has dropped three of its last four games, will try to get back on the victory trail against Wrightstown. The latter is in the loop cellar with one win and 10 losses. The lone Wrightstown win came over Omro earlier in the season.

Bear Creek and Hilbert both possess 3-8 marks and the winner of the game will have a chance to move up a notch in the standings.

Zephyr Comeback Trips Marinette

Hit Last 6 Points in 48-47
Win; Clinch Share of FVCC
Title; Koerner Collects 20

Marinette—Fighting back to score the last six points of the ball game, St. Mary made a gallant recovery to nip Marinette Central Catholic, 48-47, here Wednesday night.

The victory, among other things, gave the Zephyrs a share of their third straight Fox Valley Catholic conference crown, was their 17th win in 18 games this season and their 20th straight in conference play. The locals need only one win in their three remaining games to sew up the undisputed title. It also was the third straight verdict over a good Marinette club.

The Zephyrs had to work harder for this triumph than any of their other 16. Short handed as they were the last few weeks, they were even more so Wednesday night.

Added to the list of casualties was Jerry Laemmrich, who suffered a hip injury in the Pennings game and was not in uniform. Tony Rechner hasn't played the last three because of the flu and Mike Kiefer reinjured his knee last week and wasn't available either, giving Coach Ralph with a tremendous effort, got the visitors within a point with his 2-pointer. Fifteen seconds later, Koerner dumped in two free throws for the tying and deciding points.

With 55 seconds left, Koerner picked up his fifth foul with the deadly Pecotte the victim. But the Marinette star 2-time conference scoring champ and the current leader, missed the free throw, rim and all and St. Mary got the ball out of bounds. The Cavaliers didn't get a shot off the rest of the way.

Pecotte Scores 21
Koerner led the Zephyrs with 20 points on seven baskets and six free throws. Bill Becker added 11 and Mike Herlache made nine, including seven from the free throw line.

Pecotte led Marinette with his 21 and Pat Bradley contributed a dozen. Mike Donovan, the conference's third ranking scorer and a boy who gave St. Mary more trouble than Pecotte in the previous two games, was limited to two free throws.

St. Mary made two less field goals but made up the difference by sinking five more free throws than their hosts.

The conference leaders were in arrears, 10-9, at the quarter and they trailed, 26-22, at halftime. They had a 35-34 lead after three quarters, but Bob Pecotte's free throw gave Marinette a tie to start the final frame. It was touch and go after that.

St. Mary moved out to a 40-37 lead but Marinette got a tie, went ahead and with about two minutes remaining had a seemingly-comfortable 47-42 advantage.

St. Mary 'B' Team Loses To Cavaliers

Marinette — The St. Mary Jayvees outscored their foe from the floor but never outgunned from the free throw line in dropping a 57-51 decision to Marinette Catholic in a free scoring junior varsity game here Wednesday night.

The Zephyrs now have a 4-3 Fox Valley Catholic conference record compared to 6-2 for the second place Cavaliers.

St. Mary had a 12-10 first quarter lead but trailed 24-21 at halftime. It was behind 36-29 at the end of three frames and then posted a 22-21 edge in a wild-scoring last period.

Rockets Go for 8th Victory At Home Against M-E Leader

Jays Travel to New London
In Search of 6th Loop Win

Neenah — Neenah attempts to protect its unbeaten home court record when it entertains Mid-Eastern conference leader Kaukauna Friday night.

Menasha, which has slipped to fifth place, tries to move back into the first division at New London the same evening.

The Rockets have encountered seven opponents on their own floor and have come out on top each time. They didn't have much to spare the last time out, winning over Shawano 68-67 on a free throw after the final horn had sounded. But by one point or 20, it still was a win.

Kaukauna, on the other hand, is unbeaten in road games. Its lone loss in 16 was absorbed at home with Kimberly doing the administering.

Victory Chains

Both are working on winning chains; Kaukauna has eight and Neenah four. Since bowing to Kimberly, the Ghosts have victimized Two Rivers twice, Neenah, East Green Bay, Clintonville, Shawano, Menasha, New London and Kimberly.

The Rockets, since losing to the Ghosts 72-61 on Dec. 18, defeated Appleton and Two Rivers, then lost to Kimberly by five and have successive wins over New London, Menasha, Shawano and Clintonville.

Reverse Losses

In rebounding from a poor conference start the Rockets have reversed losses to Menasha and Shawano and a win over the leaders would be another big feather in their cap.

Neenah has the better offensive mark of the pair, having scored 699 points to 643 for the Ghosts. Kaukauna excels on defense where it allowed 543 compared to 666 by the Red and White. Two Rivers' 78 last week was the most tallied by an opposing team.

Coach Lucian Gajewski hopes his Menasha Bluejays don't have a letdown after their supreme effort even in defeat by Kimberly, when they seek their sixth league win at New London.

In New London, they meet a club capable of upset as illustrated by its easy win over Clintonville the week after the Truckers dumped Kimberly from the ranks of the conference unbeaten.

The Bulldogs only trailed

City Aldermen Take Tour of Bank Building

Menasha — City aldermen inspected the present First National bank of Menasha building Wednesday as a possible city office location.

They also were guests of the Neenah-Menasha Chamber of Commerce at a dinner in the Elks club later.

The city has approved sale of the long-vacant site of the old high school, on Racine between First and Second streets, to the bank for a new bank building and possible shopping center.

No price has been established as yet, Mayor R. G. DuCharme said. He said reports indicate people to do their shopping locally. A department store may be attracted to build on the site, according to Croy.

Troop 55 Lists Six Coming Scout Events

Menasha — Six coming events of St. Patrick Boy Scout troop 55 are on the troop's calendar.

Events so far scheduled are a waste paper collection drive Feb. 20; a winter camping weekend Feb. 26-28 at Gardner Dam camp near Shawano; a winter camping weekend Feb. 26-28 at Gardner Dam camp near Shawano; charter renewal meeting March 10 at the Elks club; First Aid-O-Ree March 26 at Appleton; court of honor and 15th anniversary program April 24 in the school; and the annual summer canoe trip, late in June.

are incorrect. If such a transaction is made, the bank must pay some cash in addition to the building, he added. If the bank building is taken over by the city, the present city office building, itself a former bank, would be sold or rented for other use, the mayor said.

A statement issued Wednesday by Leo R. Croy, bank board chairman, said the bank aims to improve "the downtown shopping area to induce people to do their shopping locally." A department store may be attracted to build on the site, according to Croy.

Plans to Petition the FCC for establishment of a land station to facilitate rescue work in area waters was discussed at a meeting of boating groups Wednesday noon. Left to right are Gifford Danke and Mrs. Clarence Miller of the Tri-City Boating club; Dr. Ralph Juneau, one of the instigators of the plan; G. K. Willeck, Appleton Power Boat and Yacht club; and Gordon Blank, Menasha Dock Association.

Separate From Budget

Student Activities Fund Pays Part of Co-Curriculars' Tab

Menasha — Direct and incidental expenses of student activities are paid from the high school student activities fund, while faculty members' extra pay and equipment purchases are paid by the board of education budget.

The board of education Monday dropped co-curricular activities, including sports, drama, musical programs and debate, as well as summer school and use of the school swimming pool to save $7,900 in the school budget not supplied by the common council, effective next fall.

Receipts from paid activities, such as basketball and football games, musical and dramatic productions, go directly into the student activity fund, kept separate from the board of education's funds.

Fund Audited
Prin. L. A. Wienbergen is in charge of the fund, which is audited by the same firm and at the same time as school funds.

The activity fund, whose disbursements are approved each month by the board, takes care of such things as officials' fees, transportation and meals for teams, athletic conference and state association dues, trophies and letters, and pay for extra-duty policemen at major events.

Pay for the faculty members handling the co-curricular activities is included in the current school year's teacher contracts. Each teacher with such an activity is paid an extra $450.

The saving on teacher pay is estimated at $3,000. Purchase of equipment for co-curriculars was estimated at $2,500. The items were included in the $7,900 estimated expenses cut from the budget Monday by the board of education. The 1960 calendar year

Presently under FCC regulations, the "ship to shore" frequency cannot be used because we are within 100 miles of coast guard stations at Two Rivers and Port Washington.

At the Neenah police station, the radio equipment would be monitored 24 hours a day, calls taken and the rescue work initiated immediately. Now if a boat sees another in trouble, it has to head for shore for help. If the marine frequency were used through the land station much time could be saved, boaters indicated.

A citizen's radio band was discussed but the group felt it would be inadequate. The proposed operation would take in waters from Appleton to Fond du Lac.

Groups represented were the Appleton Power Boat and Yacht club, Tri-City Boating club, Menasha Dock association, Neenah-Menasha Boat club and Neenah Dock association. Because of weather conditions, spokesmen from Fond du Lac and Oshkosh were unable to attend.

school budget has been limited to $783,619 for operations plus $101,250 for two school bond issue payments, for a grand total of $884,869.

The common council in November ordered the school budget cut by $40,000. In order to make the cut, many items of maintenance as well as the summer school program and use of the school swimming pool are eliminated.

The summer school program included typing in high school and two sections of remedial reading in grade school last summer. The board had planned some expansion of summer school for high school students this coming summer.

The $400 cut from the budget for pool operation is for water treating chemicals which will not be bought.

Boaters Seek Land Station In Rescue Work
Area Groups Want Permission to Use Marine Frequency
Menasha — Representatives of five boat clubs Wednesday unanimously voted to petition the agencies involved for authority to establish a land station and for use of the marine frequency in rescue work on area water. They met for a noon luncheon at the Elks club.
The action was initiated by Harold Nelson, a radio technician and a member of the Neenah Boat club, assisted by Dr. R. A. Juneau.
The club spokesmen feel this area is behind in providing rescue facilities for boaters who use the many lakes and rivers with their treacherous waters and the big increase in boating on them.
Petition FCC
They are petitioning the Federal Communications commission for authority to use the new Neenah police station as the organized land station for the rescue work on the "ship to shore" marine frequency, thereby greatly speeding up action on distress calls.
Presently under FCC regulations, the "ship to shore" frequency cannot be used because we are within 100 miles of coast guard stations at Two Rivers and Port Washington.
At the Neenah police station, the radio equipment would be monitored 24 hours a day, calls taken and the rescue work initiated immediately. Now if a boat sees another in trouble, it has to head for shore for help. If the marine frequency were used through the land station much time could be saved, boaters indicated.
